RIVERS CALLS FOR LUXURY TAX TO RAISE $2,500,000, ASKS NIGHT SESSIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT SATURDAY

Riotous 'Little Business' Session Is Dispersed

FRENZIED SCENES OF CONVENTIONS RIVALED BY NOISE

Secretary of Commerce Roper Forms Gathering Into 10 Study Groups To Discuss Their Plans.

LARGEST NUMBER JOINS 'LOAN' UNIT

Committee Will Be Named To Carry Recommendations to President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—A thousand "small businessmen" brought to Washington today almost as many ideas about how to revive business, and the result was confusion.

They met in the Commerce Department's assembly hall, but the session became so tumultuous—everybody was trying to talk at once—that it soon broke up into ten study groups.

Each group was assigned a subject and the delegates were permitted to sit in at any or all of the sessions. The intention is that each group will submit recommendations to the general assembly tomorrow. After that a delegation of ten will be chosen to take the recommendations to President Roosevelt.

Delegates Attracted.
The meeting which discussed "loans for small business" attracted most delegates. A crowd turned up for the meeting on trade practices. "Miscellaneous subject" also drew well.

All of the delegates quickly demonstrated that they had come to Washington to be heard and not to listen. The result was tumult—scores seeking recognition, a dozen hands on the standard of the microphone. The scene rivaled the more frenzied moments of a national political convention.

It was, manifestly, impossible to proceed, so Secretary of Commerce Roper seized the gavel, stilling the clamor somewhat, and dispersed the meeting into 10 study groups, where the effort to make many speeches at the same moment merrily continued.

Really in Earnest.
But individually, as interviews disclosed, the little businessmen were in deadly earnest. Each had his own ideas of what should be done, some had laboriously surveyed the opinion of their neighbors. Most were mystified as to why they were picked me out, and many were equally at a loss to know why they found soliloquy messages from their senators and congressmen waiting for them in their hotel rooms.

So many and so varied were the ideas they brought, that the day produced no noticeable crystallization of sentiment on any one point, unless it was that little businessmen need more capital and that, vaguely, some method must be provided to satisfy that need.

A subject was assigned to each study group and the delegates were left free to select the group they wished to join. The largest number flocked to the meeting on "loans for small business," and promptly fell into a confusion of argument as to whether the wording of the topic should not be changed to "capital for small business." One gentleman earnestly suggested that the whole

Tumult Amazes Washington As 'Small Business' Meets

First Speaker Forced to Retire From Rostrum Under Hail of Yells and Catcalls as Milling Delegates Demand Floor; Reporters Sit With Mouths Open.

By WADE JONES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—For a meeting such as this city of meetings seldom sees, upwards of 800 of the nation's "little businessmen" trooped into the Commerce Department auditorium today to settle the country's ills and ended up by giving the town something really to talk about.

Secretary of Commerce Roper made a speech of welcome to open the first session and was followed by Assistant Secretary Draper. He, in turn, introduced Fred Roth, Cleveland, Ohio, shoe man who had been appointed temporary chairman.

"I make a motion Mr. Roth be appointed permanent chairman," came a voice from the audience. A wave of "noes" and "ayes" roared through the auditorium.

"I object on the ground that he was hand-picked," roared one voice louder than the others. Mr. Draper seized the gavel from Mr. Roth and restored order long enough to vote on the question. Mr. Roth was elected.

A speaker then took the rostrum. "Gentlemen," he began, "I have a message that is of vital importance to you all." Whereupon 15 little businessmen jumped to their feet and began to take exception to the speaker's remarks. The speaker retired under a hail of yells and catcalls. From then on, it was touch and go.

Another man gained the rostrum, clutching the microphone and had barely launched into his voluminous manuscript when he, too, was forced to retire under a fire of "shut him up, he's talked too long now."

At this point, an upheaval occurred on the stage behind the speaker. The building guards and a special detachment from the po-

GEORGIANS SILENT IN BUSINESS 'RIOT'

Disorder and Confusion Prevent Constructive Talks by Wellhouse, May

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—While agreeing with the general objectives of President Roosevelt's conference of small businessmen which opened a two-day session here today, Georgia's representatives took an inactive part because of the confusion and disorder which punctuated both morning and afternoon sessions.

Sydney L. Wellhouse, president of the National Paper Company, Bolton, and Armand May, of the American Associated Companies Atlanta, came prepared to offer many constructive suggestions as to how government could favorably influence business and industry in their section of the country, but when they found that what they considered representative business was outnumbered by the long-haired, radical element, they, together with the other five Georgians, contented themselves with listening and observing.

Less Government.
Mr. Wellhouse did say, however, in a meeting of the fair practices group that there should be less government in business and government regulation only to the point of "good ethics."

Both Wellhouse and May were really astounded at the way things turned out after they reached the general conference room. They said they had no idea there were so many crazy ideas in the heads of big or little business. Today's proceedings were a revelation to them because when they came to Washington they had expected a more rational viewpoint from the smaller businesses of the country. However, they are not discouraged because they believe, if given half a chance, business will work out its own salvation.

Asks Business Aid.
Mr. May read a paper in which he pleaded for a governmental policy that would help business, great and small.

"It is impossible," he said, "for business to behave in accordance with an unworkable formula. It should have rules and regulations to be sure, and will, I am sure, adjust itself to rules and regulations if they are fair and just. But to ask business to lower prices, to increase pay and reduce hours, as well as to add to its personnel, unless business itself demands it, removes it from business and places it in another category."

"We either have to look at business based upon the past as far as its guarantees of the future are concerned, or we must be blind to its great accomplishments and its even greater possibilities."

Wellhouse and May expressed amazement after they had heard delegate after delegate urge from the conference rostrum a return to a modified form of NRA.

"It's unbelievable," they said, "that business in America would want to return to the terrifying

At the end of the session, he seemed to have regained his composure, but he was pale and taut. Roll asked questions in terms of split-seconds, distance by feet. Then he would rephrase and ask them again.

Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler, who has voiced few objections in the trial, once remarked Wright had answered one question three different times in cross-examination.

Roll hammered at Wright to say just how far he had advanced into the living room when, as he once expressed it to Wright, "you saw what you say you saw."

"I don't know," Wright replied in a sobbing, agonized voice, "but I saw what I saw."

FARMERS TO GET PLANT-TO-PROSPER SCIENTIFIC DATA

State's Three Experiment Stations To Prepare Series of Articles To Aid Growers in Contest.

CITIZENS PRAISE CONSTITUTION PLAN

Planters Will Receive 32 Cash Awards Totaling $3,500 and Trophies.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Directors of Georgia's three experiment stations will prepare a series of articles in order that participants in The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prospere campaign will have available the latest, most scientific and most timely advice possible to provide.

Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, has requested Dr. H. P. Stuckey, director of the Georgia Experiment Station, Experiment, Ga.; S. H. Starr, director of the Coastal Plain Experiment Station, Tifton, Ga.; and George H. King, president of Abraham Baldwin College, Abbeville, Ga., to begin preparation of the material in order that it may be as timely and as definite as possible.

To Give Co-operation.
While Dr. Chapman and his assistants were preparing to give every co-operation to the program, the constitution continued to praise The Constitution for initiating the contest in which progressive Georgia farmers will receive 32 cash awards totaling $3,500, 35 silver trophies and 577 other honors.

Judging will be on the following basis:
Forty per cent for execution of the best live at home program, and 20 per cent each for soil conservation, crop diversification and making improvements to homes.

An application blank for white entrants is carried in this issue of The Constitution, and should be filled in and mailed as directed. Details of establishment of the negro division will be announced within the next few days.

Series of Conferences.
Following the announcement of M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational training of the State Department of Education, and his assistants that every co-operation will be given the Plant-to-Prospere campaign, R. D. Pulliam, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Wheeler County High School, Alamo, Ga., began a series of conferences centering around:

"Setting up a 1938 farm program."
The farmers have been invited to present their problems. Several programs to meet the needs of planters will be worked out and farmers will be urged to select their own programs.

Program Praised.
Miss Lily Reynolds, of Luthersville, wrote Major Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Constitution, lauding the program and praising Major Howell in the following letter:

"Though in no way connected with a farm either as owner or tenant so many of my ancestors

Marriage Held 'Socially Impossible' Blamed in Nazi War Chief Ouster

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—(P)—Colonel von Blomberg is a carpenter's daughter.

Hitler was angered because he lacked full facts of the marriage before the wedding ceremony. It was understood the adjutant who failed to inform him had been discharged.

Private comment of highly placed officials said von Blomberg was not expected to return to Germany.

Colonel General Werner von Fritsch, commander-in-chief of the Reichswehr, who was said to have acted as spokesman for the army in suggesting the marshal's resignation, also has quit, but Hitler has not yet acted on his resignation.

Some Germans referred to von Blomberg's quitting as another "Wallis Simpson affair," likening his resignation to the abdication of former King Edward VIII of England.

FAIRFAX HARRISON, EX-RAIL HEAD, DIES

Heart Disease Is Fatal to Former Lawyer and President of Southern.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2.—(P)—Fairfax Harrison, 69, who retired three months ago as president of the Southern Railway Company, died tonight in a Baltimore hospital. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Harrison's ancestry reached back to the early days of the nation. He was named for Lord Fairfax, an ancestor. His father, Burton Harrison, was private secretary to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy.

He had been president of the road since 1913, and after relinquishing that office remained as chairman of the finance committee. Ill health, however, compelled him to spend most of the time before entering the hospital at his Virginia country estate, near Middleburg.

Harrison was born in New York. He attended Yale and Columbia Universities and was admitted to the bar. He entered the employ of the Southern as a member of the legal department, but seven years later, in 1903, he became assistant to Samuel Spencer, then president. In 1906 he was named a vice president.

He later served as president of a number of other roads, the Chi-

LIQUOR IN MARCH, HASTINGS ASSERTS

Local Option Group Moves for an Election in Fulton in Six Weeks.

Although Governor Rivers delayed until today signing of the liquor tax bill, definite moves for an election in Fulton county were launched yesterday and Representative William G. Hastings, county chairman of the Georgia Local Option Association, predicted Atlanta will have legal liquor within six weeks.

The Governor explained that he could not sign the liquor tax bill until a bill reorganizing the state revenue department obtains his approval. The liquor bill puts administration of the law under the new revenue commissioner. That official is created under the revenue reorganization act, which necessarily must be signed first.

Clerk Joe Boone, of the house of representatives, said he expected the revenue bill to reach the Governor's office some time today. Governor Rivers went to Sa-

Dry Chief Commends Constitution as Fair

Commendation for The Constitution in printing "argumentative statements on the other side" was given by W. W. Gaines, chairman of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia. He praised the fairness of the paper in a letter, which follows in full:

"Editor Constitution: Please allow me to thank you for the generous space that you have always freely given me as chairman of the state dry forces. More often than any other paper you have printed my statements in full. While your paper in its editorial columns has always very strongly opposed my position, yet you have readily given the public the benefit of my views."

"The other Atlanta papers have also, as a rule, been generous but The Constitution 'exceedeth them all.'"

"We think that it is a mistake for a paper to decline to publish such a statement on the ground that it contains 'no news value.' When a paper itself has carried vigorous editorials on the question, which editorials themselves, of course, had 'no news value,' it seems to me that in fairness it should allow an argumentative statement on the other side in reply. That is what The Constitution has done."

"Very truly yours,
"W. W. GAINES, Chairman."

GOVERNOR FINDS COUNTIES REQUIRE $2,500,000 MORE

He Proposes Assembly Substitute Bill To Levy on Non-Essentials for Any Pending Measure.

SPEECH TERMED RE-ELECTION HINT

Executive Says 'I'll Accept Responsibility' for His Revenue Proposal.

Governor Rivers yesterday called upon the general assembly to enact a luxury and nonessential tax to provide funds to meet an anticipated state deficit of $2,500,000. He said that funds for the counties needing aid to overcome losses to follow $2,000 homestead exemption and $300 personal property exemption voted early in the session also might be provided.

The chief executive called for a speedy conclusion of the present special session, declaring the remaining work could be "disposed of in a few days." He urged day and night sessions of both houses in order that the work might be completed.

Rivers leaders in both houses early this week announced they were driving for a side die adjournment Saturday night. However, most capital observers declared this was not likely, but were predicting that the work probably would be finished late next week.

Doesn't Name Articles.
The Governor did not name any articles he wanted included in the luxury tax nor did he give any rate of taxation. He did mention, however, that the luxury taxes now being placed on special articles such as beer and cigars total 20 per cent.

Some members of the house saw in the Governor's address an indirect announcement that he would be a candidate for re-election. There has been some talk in the house of a candidate for the United States senate.

In closing his remarks, the chief executive praised the legislators both collectively and individually and said: "I hope that your people send you all back so we can work together once more."

"You and I have proven that we can work together," Governor Rivers said.

He thus indicated that he, too, hoped to be back in the Governor's chair when the new assembly is convened next January.

Urges Other Bills.
Governor Rivers made numerous other recommendations to the assembly, chief among them being for the passage of the remainder of the penal reform bills and for the creation of state civil service. The prison bills have been passed by the senate and are now on the house calendar. Likewise the senate has approved the civil service bill.

He recommended that the luxury tax bill be drawn immediately and substituted for a tax bill already approved by the ways and means committee and awaiting action by the house.

The only bill of this type awaiting action by the house is the Chappell sales tax bill. There also is a bill taxing chewing gum 20

Auto Hits Trolley Head-On Near Buckhead, 5 Injured

Passengers on Street Car Unhurt as Car Carrying Six is Reported To Have Pulled Out of Traffic Lane Onto Tracks.

A head-on collision of a streetcar and a passenger automobile resulted in injury to five persons early last night in front of 3330 Peachtree road, near Stratford road. A two-year old girl escaped injury.

According to Fulton County Policemen C. C. Heard and Carl Thompson the passenger car was driven by F. A. Hunter, 49, of Detroit, Mich. The streetcar was operated by A. B. Swanson, of 55 Windsor street, S. W.

The officers reported Hunter's car struck the front of the streetcar when he pulled out of the traffic lane to pass another automobile. The streetcar was damaged but no passengers were injured. The Hunter car was badly wrecked.

Two of the injured were admitted to Grady hospital. They were F. A. Hunter, who suffered a broken hip and several broken ribs, and Mrs. F. M. Hunter, of 555 Formwalt street, who suffered a fractured pelvis and several fractured ribs. Their condition was reported not critical.

The others injured were taken to Crawford W. Long hospital. They were listed as Miss Louise Hunter, 17, daughter of F. A. Hunter, who suffered a broken pelvis and cuts of the face and legs; F. M. Hunter, 50, of the Formwalt street address, who suffered head lacerations and fractured ribs, and Mrs. L. D. Freeman, 25, also of Formwalt street, a stepdaughter of F. M. Hunter, who suffered shock and cuts and bruises of the body.

Child Unhurt.

H. C. Womack, of Dunwoody, Ga., a passing motorist, saw Miss Hunter lying in the street and rushed her to the hospital. The others were taken to hospitals in ambulances.

The Hunters and others were going to Norcross to visit relatives when the accident occurred. Ruth Freeman, 2, daughter of Mrs. Freeman, was unhurt.

Reinstatement Denied 'Dating' Coach; Principal Resigns.

DOTHAN, Ala., Feb. 2.—(P)—A compromise settlement of the "Romance of Rehearsal" school strike was announced tonight in a joint statement by the Houston county school board and a committee representing patrons.

Hugh A. Wynn, the high school coach whose "dates" with pretty Mary Grubbs, 18-year-old senior at the school, led to his dismissal and a student strike, was not reinstated, but applied for a new job.

B. L. Warden, principal of the school, resigned, and his post was declared vacant. Solomon Baxter, county superintendent of education announced.

The school will reopen Monday, and the joint statement urged all patrons to send their children back to school for classes.

U. S. ACTION URGED ON NEUTRALITY

'State of War' Statement by Minister Brings New Demands.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—The Japanese foreign minister's assertion that a "state of war" exists between Japan and China brought renewed demands today from some congressmen for invocation of the neutrality act.

Administration leaders indicated, however, that in the absence of a formal declaration of war there was little likelihood that President Roosevelt would apply this act forbidding arms shipments to belligerents.

It was pointed out that Koki Hirota, the Japanese minister, had made his remark informally while answering a question in the Japanese diet.

Members of the congressional neutrality bloc said it should be sufficient nevertheless for immediate invocation of the neutrality act.

"It seems to me," said Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, "that there is no post left to hide behind for not invoking the law." Some others who had previously demanded application of the act expressed a similar view.

Most members of the senate foreign relations committee said, however, that they believed Hirota's statement would not affect this government's policy in the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

Senator Johnson, Republican, California, shared this view with some Democrats, including Senators Schwelb, of Washington and Thomas, of Utah.

No Official Comment.

There was no official comment from the state department. It was said there could be none since the department had not received an official translation of Hirota's remarks and lacked information as to its full implications.

President Roosevelt must invoke the neutrality act whenever a state of war legally exists. Nye and others cited this provision in demanding the law's application.

A proposal already is before the senate foreign relations committee to change this mandatory provision. Advanced by Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, it would require the President to report to congress whenever he believed a state of war or civil strife threatened the peace of the United States. Congress then would determine whether a neutrality proclamation should be issued.

Meaning of High Opening Bids To Be Explained at Bridge School

What would you do, if you were playing bridge and your partner opened the bidding at five no-trump? Suppose your partner opened five spades or six hearts?

Each one of these unusual opening bids has a significant meaning, according to Harold Sharpsteen, director of The Atlanta Constitution's School of Bridge. He terms them "special purpose bids" and warns they are apt to come up, most any time, in a rubber of bridge.

If you are not certain just how you should respond in the above tricky situations then do not miss the opportunity to learn the correct answers. All of these questions, and many similar ones, will be fully explained by Mr. Sharpsteen at Friday's three sessions of The Constitution Bridge School in the Biltmore hotel Pompeian room. Classes will be held as usual at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m.

The full range of opening bids will be the feature of tomorrow's three classes. Mr. Sharpsteen will thoroughly explain when suit bids should be opened at one, two, three, four, five and six. He will likewise cover all no-trump openings, giving requirements and responses for each situation.

Constitution readers who would like to obtain first-hand authentic requirements for all opening bids in contract may attend any one of Friday's three classes for 35 cents when The Constitution bridge school courtesy coupon, appearing below, is presented at the classroom. Prior enrollment is not necessary to take advantage of Friday's instruction. The same lesson will be given morning, afternoon and night. Without The Constitution coupon the regular instruction fee is $1, so Constitution readers should make sure to take advantage of their coupon privilege.

Supervised instruction in actual play and straight rubber games will follow the regular lesson periods at all classes tomorrow.

All classes in The Constitution series are open to the public.

Meaning of High Opening Bids To Be Explained at Bridge School

What would you do, if you were playing bridge and your partner opened the bidding at five no-trump? Suppose your partner opened five spades or six hearts?

Each one of these unusual opening bids has a significant meaning, according to Harold Sharpsteen, director of The Atlanta Constitution's School of Bridge. He terms them "special purpose bids" and warns they are apt to come up, most any time, in a rubber of bridge.

If you are not certain just how you should respond in the above tricky situations then do not miss the opportunity to learn the correct answers. All of these questions, and many similar ones, will be fully explained by Mr. Sharpsteen at Friday's three sessions of The Constitution Bridge School in the Biltmore hotel Pompeian room. Classes will be held as usual at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m.

The full range of opening bids will be the feature of tomorrow's three classes. Mr. Sharpsteen will thoroughly explain when suit bids should be opened at one, two, three, four, five and six. He will likewise cover all no-trump openings, giving requirements and responses for each situation.

Constitution readers who would like to obtain first-hand authentic requirements for all opening bids in contract may attend any one of Friday's three classes for 35 cents when The Constitution bridge school courtesy coupon, appearing below, is presented at the classroom. Prior enrollment is not necessary to take advantage of Friday's instruction. The same lesson will be given morning, afternoon and night. Without The Constitution coupon the regular instruction fee is $1, so Constitution readers should make sure to take advantage of their coupon privilege.

Supervised instruction in actual play and straight rubber games will follow the regular lesson periods at all classes tomorrow.

All classes in The Constitution series are open to the public.

Discovery of Commercial Value In Pecan Oil Seen as Aid to Growers

Report of Two Years' Experiment Is Made to Association of Southern Agricultural Workers in Session Here.

Fatter pocketbooks were anticipated for Georgia pecan growers yesterday.

Discovery of commercial uses for pecan oil as a cooking fat and salad oil was reported to the horticultural section of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers in session here.

The report was made by Dr. T. H. McHatten, head of the horticulture department of the Georgia State College of Agriculture where experiments with pecan oil have been made during the past two years. Georgia is the largest pecan producing state in the nation.

Comparisons have been made between pecan, olive and cottonseed oil and it was found that pecan oil "is just as good in color as olive oil," McHatten reported.

McHatten anticipated that in commercial production of pecan oil as salad oil and cooking fat, 100 pounds of pecans will produce 20 to 25 pounds of oil and around 25 pounds of meal, both of which products will have great

GRAVES CONFERS ON UTILITY SALE

Governor Meets With Thomas R. Martin.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Governor Bibb Graves said today he would renew discussions tomorrow with Thomas R. Martin, president of the Alabama Power Company, who recently voiced approval of a proposal that states or the Tennessee Valley Authority purchase private electric utilities operating in TVA regions.

The Governor and Martin have met twice within the last month, but both have declined to say what specific subjects were discussed. Graves did not elaborate on today's meeting announcement, they would confer again tomorrow.

The proposal that states or TVA purchase utilities came from Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, a holding company controlling Alabama Power.

WORLD FAIR EXHIBIT FOR SOUTH PLANNED

Southern States To Work as Closely Knit Organization on Displays.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS. WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Plans are in the making for giving the southeastern tier of states one of the most elaborate exhibits to be found at the forthcoming World's Fair in New York city next year. Carrying out their program of working as a closely knit organization the southeastern governors, it was revealed here today, have determined to act jointly in providing an exhibit rather than have the several states offer separate and unrelated displays.

To this end Lawrence Wood, Robert J., executive director of the Southeastern Governors' Conference, announced that a meeting will be called in Atlanta soon of representatives of the various states for the purpose of outlining a definite program for the joint exhibit. Officials of the New York World's Fair organization will be present to assist in the arrangements.

Collective Display. "The Southeastern Governors' Conference," said Mr. Robert, who until recently was assistant secretary of the treasury, "has endorsed the idea of a collective display. Steps will be taken to have a separate building to house the southeastern exhibit, which we hope to make one of the most impressive at the World's Fair. It will offer a splendid opportunity to advertise the southeast's industrial and economic resources, entirely in keeping with the program of the southeastern governors for industrial development of the area."

While the southeast will join in a common exhibit the individual states will not lose their identity. Mr. Robert said, explaining that the purpose will be merely to give a more effective setting by having the displays grouped together under a single roof.

"World's Fair officials are actively co-operating with the program," he asserted, "and we are confident of producing an exhibit that will be a distinct credit to all the states of the southeast."

At their recent meeting in Washington, the southeastern governors organized on a permanent basis, broadening the objectives of the original conference which drew the states together in a common attack on long-standing territorial rail freight rate differentials. Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, was elected chairman and Governor Rivers, of Georgia, vice chairman.

The other states represented are North and South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Kentucky.

Georgian Gathers Strange Friends in World

It didn't take a sharp look for B. T. Castellow to gather up all those knives in Afghanistan, Kashmir, Arabia and other countries. He just picked them up in various places, but now he doesn't know what to do with them. If he saw a tiger, he'd know how to use the gun, however.

This picture, taken of Mr. Castellow on a railway near the borders of Afghanistan, shows what kind of friends he met when he left Georgia. The friends came in handy, as ominous as they appeared, for they rode with him to within two miles of the Afghanistan border, from where he hiked the remaining distance to put his foot over the line.

Castellow Knows How It Feels To Meet--and Shoot--Wild Tigers

Ex-Congressman, Visiting Sister in College Park, Tells of Experiences in World Jaunt; Heard First Shots Fired in Sino-Jap War.

Ex-Congressman Bryant Thomas Castellow, who has just returned from a jaunt around the world, sat in a soft, safe chair in the home of his sister, Mrs. L. O. Freeman, of 302 West Rugby avenue, College Park, last night and described how it feels to be surrounded by tigers.

"You don't feel like running," he emphasized. "You feel more like shooting—and shooting quickly."

"Now there was the day I was outside a small village in the northern part of Sumatra..."

Meets Three Tigers. Castellow told how he met tigers on his recent trip around the world. The day he mentioned was an exciting one for him. He had lain in wait for the tiger he knew was in the vicinity of the village. When he looked from out of his hiding place in bushes—there was not only one tiger, but three. Castellow's guides had gone back to the village, at his instructions. He yelled, shot and tried to think all at the same moment, he explained.

When the natives arrived in answer to his cries, he was safe, having killed one of the tigers and put two others to rout. He went back a hero.

Before he stopped hunting, he had killed another, which he thinks was very good. He has one wealthy friend who has spent thousands of dollars on tiger hunts, yet who has never killed a tiger, he said.

However, that wasn't the only exciting experience the former congressman had on his jaunt, or has had in years past.

He heard the first shots fired in the Sino-Japanese war. He disobeyed orders of British officials.

Sailed Last June. Last June he sailed from Vancouver, B. C. A month later he was in Peiping, listening to machine guns. A month later still, he was in Sumatra, hunting tigers.

From hunting he went to Bangkok, in Siam. From there, he journeyed to Burma, then to Calcutta, scene of the famous "Black Hole." He saw Mt. Everest in the Himalayas of India. By auto, he went to Jubbulpore.

Kashmir, Ceylon, Egypt, Palestine—all these he passed through, studying as he went. He said he lectured in universities in India, besides those in other more enlightened countries.

He made it a point to gather some small memento at each place. One is an elaborate opium pipe. In Penang he went to court to look things over and saw the pipe, which had been confiscated from a citizen charged with "smoking opium without a license." When the citizen was fined, the pipe was given to Castellow.

A few weeks ago, Castellow landed once more on American soil. He thought he would come home to stay a good while before the wanderlust struck him. But he's planning an African jaunt right now and will leave again in a few weeks.

Well known in Washington, he counts many of the country's best-known personages as his friends. His one daughter is the wife of A. L. Ford, from Mississippi, one of the youngest congressmen in the nation. He will return to Washington within a few days, he said.

SPANISH REBELS TO RELEASE TANKER

Ship, Conveying Oil to Loyalists, Was Seized January 17.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The United States received assurances today from the Spanish Insurgent government that the American tanker Nantucket Chief, seized by Insurgent warships January 17, would be released and its American crew set free.

General Francisco Franco informed Secretary Hull that the ship has left Palma, Island of Majorca, where it has been kept since its capture, for the Spanish Insurgent mainland.

After its cargo of Russian oil has been unloaded (it was originally destined for the Spanish Loyalists at Barcelona) the ship and crew of 30 Americans will be freed.

The state department disclosed that Captain J. E. Lewis, of the Nantucket Chief, who has been in prison at Palma since January 26, will be released within a few days.

The Nantucket Chief is of American registry, belonging to the Nantucket Chief Steamship Company, a Delaware corporation.

NO WARNING GIVEN, SURVIVORS ASSESS. CARTAGENA, Spain, Feb. 2.—Four survivors declared today the unidentified submarine attacker of the British freighter Endymion gave no warning before launching a torpedo that sank the freighter with the loss of 10 lives.

The survivors, two English officers and two Spanish seamen, swam for an hour Sunday before they were saved by the Spanish government coast guard.

"Only Bubbles." Engineer William Wood said he did not see the Endymion's mysterious attacker, but only bubbles on the surface of the water 300 yards from the ship, presumably where the torpedo craft submerged after firing.

He declared the crew was in the engine room and in cabins when the missile struck. They had no time to lower lifeboats and were forced to jump into the sea with only planking to keep them afloat.

GOVERNMENT, INSURGENT TROOPS IN DEADLOCK. HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Feb. 2.—(AP)—Deadlocked on the Teruel front in eastern Spain and north of Cordoba in the south, Spanish government and insurgent armies today searched for openings in their enemy's lines.

The government announced the capture of the summit of Cullado Espina on the Somosierra front which has been the scene of little activity since the beginning of the civil war.

It reported the Insurgents offered no resistance to occupation of the position which is 3,500 feet high and near Villavieja Del Lozoya, 35 miles north of Madrid.

Madrid was shelled intermittently for six hours by Insurgents tonight, but no casualties were reported. Government artillery answered the fire.

CAPITAL IS AMAZED AT BUSINESS 'RIOT'

half of 100 New York businessmen."

"Some 40 newspaper reporters, at two long tables in front of the rostrum, sat with their mouths open."

A blue haze of cigarette smoke drifted up to the ceiling and into the packed gallery above. People stood jammed in all the entrances and especially at the front of the auditorium under the rostrum. Hands wildly waved their painstakingly prepared speeches.

They demanded the right to deliver them.

Some of the uninitiate covered backward as the bulbs from a dozen or more cameras flashed in their faces. Men and women alike yelled demands for their rights to an utterly distraught chairman, who gave cadence to the hubbub with the rhythmic crashing of his gavel.

Eventually, shortly before noon, Secretary Roper took charge and managed to bring order by dismissing half of the group to their work in committees.

Factions Formed. Cliques, factions and even caucuses, meanwhile, were forming in the Commerce Department corridors and hotel rooms throughout the city as the delegates got into the Washington swing and its ever-present politics.

In closed sessions in their rooms, and in those not so closed at the bars, geographical and business differences broke up or cemented the groups. It was all business, however, and very serious business, as it was at the meeting.

GABLE'S ACCUSER WILL GO ON STAGE

Mrs. Norton Is Deported to Canada.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, who served seven months in jail after she had claimed in federal court that Clark Gable was the father of her daughter, left today aboard a deportation train for Canada.

She said she planned to go on the stage with "lectures and such," explaining a man "called me from New York while I was in jail and made me the offer."

Gwendoline, 14, the girl Mrs. Norton claimed was born to her and the actor in England, is in a private school here. She had demanded Gable support her. Gable proved he was working in a Pacific coast lumber camp at the time Mrs. Norton said he was in England.

The government of Puerto Rico spent $37,566,000 for education, sanitation, and all other purposes during the last fiscal year. Education alone accounted for more than $8,000,000.

THIS MAN Knows HOW TO END DANDRUFF, GROW YOUR HAIR

A BOTTLE of tonic can't tell you which of the 14 local scalp disorders (responsible for 92% of all baldness) is causing your hair loss. It takes more than a perfumed mixture of quinine and alcohol to determine your exact difficulty. It takes complete, accurate knowledge of all hair and scalp conditions. Only a skilled scalp specialist—a man who has made an intensive study of hair and scalp disorders (not a barber or beautician who gives "scalp treatments" as a side line) can find out precisely what must be done in order to halt your loss of hair and re-grow your hair.

Thomas specialists know the symptoms of the 14 local causes of hair loss and know how each must be treated. They know exactly how to end the various forms of dandruff, how to stop falling hair and how to re-grow hair. Thomas treatment is accurate, reliable, sure. JAPANESE REPORT CAPTURE OF PENGPU IN TERRIFIC BATTLE

Chinese Refuse To Deny
Claims of Rout Along
Pukow Railway.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3.—(Thursday)—(P)—Japanese said today they captured Pengpu in a terrific battle along the Tientsin-Pukow railway 90 miles south of their central China objective—the vital rail junction at Suchow.

Dispatches from the Japanese expeditionary force which for weeks has been fighting slowly northward from Nanking asserted the stubborn Chinese defense south of the Hwai river had collapsed and the retreat of Chinese forces was assuming the nature of a rout.
The Chinese neither admitted nor denied the Japanese victory reports but said severe fighting was going on south of Pengpu, the strategic Anhwei province trading city on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad near the Hwai river.

Admits War Exists.

(Japanese Foreign Minister Koki
Hirota, in Tokyo, declared there was no Central Chinese government recognized by Japan and that a state of war existed between the two countries.)

Japanese reports said the Chinese were driven back to the north bank of the Hwai river and were trying to establish a new defense line there to halt the Japanese advance.

Thousands of fresh troops were rushed southward from the Su-chow area to bolster these defenses. The Chinese blew up the railroad bridge south of Pengpu.

Flanking Movement.

A Japanese maneuvering force swung to the west of Pengpu in a move designed to flank Chinese positions around Pengpu. The Japanese main body drove straight north along the Tientsin-Pukow line, hammering the Chinese with artillery fire.

Japanese reports said Pengpu was stormed and occupied immediately after two other towns in that area—Fengyang and Tingyu-an—were captured.
Beside the destructive artillery preparation which preceded the final assault on Pengpu, it was reported the Japanese bombarded the city heavily from the air.

was announced yesterday by William E. Arnaud, president of the

The orchestra has been practicing weekly since October, and the program promises to be one of the most interesting ever given by the society, it is said. The Philharmonic chorus will give its first concert at a date to be announced later.

The society is making an effort
this season to interest the Atlanta school children in good music, and is admitting all pupils to the concerts for 25 cents. General admission seats to others are 50 cents.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 3, 1938.

IN THE CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE

Enactment of the local option liquor bill by the Georgia legislature is a far-reaching step in the cause of temperance.

The legislature, in passing the measure, delivered a blow to the lawless elements which have controlled the liquor traffic in Georgia. That it has, at the same time, paved the way for a new source of badly needed revenue for the state, is of the utmost importance but still of secondary consideration when compared to the moral progress possible under the new law.

Unquestionably the opponents of the measure, both in and out of the legislature, were sincere in their position. It is now the duty of the majority who prevailed in their belief that prohibition was worse than a failure to leave no step untaken to prove that the evils of the liquor traffic can be better controlled under a system of strict regulation of sales.

The new local option law is the essence of democracy. It permits the majority will to prevail in every county of the state. Those which prefer legally controlled sales of liquor may so decree, while those who wish to continue the effort to keep whisky out of their borders will be aided in attaining this objective by the law itself.

Now that the road has been made clear for legal liquor in Georgia the law-abiding citizens of the state must untidely support the new law. Under the bill's provisions it is possible to completely control the traffic. There is no longer any excuse for the bootlegging of liquor and the first result of the new law should be a determined and effective campaign to take the business out of the hands of lawbreakers. With the approval of all citizens and with co-operation of everyone, the police are now in position, for the first time in years, to stamp out bootlegging. They have been given an enforceable law in place of one utterly unenforceable because it was not backed by popular approval.

With local option, Georgia may now resume the splendid work that was being done prior to the disastrous prohibition experiment. That is, to do away with drunkenness and abuse of alcoholic beverages through education.

Temperance advocates were making steady progress toward a sober nation when the unfortunate experiment of statutory prohibition was made. Now they are given a new opportunity to resume the great work of educating the nation into temperance. In that work they will have the earnest co-operation of all good citizens who have opposed prohibition because they believed it encouraged, instead of lessened, drinking.

Prohibition failed, woefully. Now new strength is injected into the cause of true temperance in Georgia by a law which again gives the people control over liquor. Legal control of the commodity opens the door to self-control of appetite which is, after all, the only effective control that normal humanity will acknowledge.

TO PUBLICIZE THE LAW

The Atlanta Bar Association has included in its program for 1938 an advertising campaign. This is a pioneer movement among legal organizations and has received favorable comment from bar associations in all parts of the country. It is an idea certain to spread and as it does, it will carry to every city of the land the name of its point of origin, as the "Atlanta idea."

Advertising by lawyers has, in the past, been confined to strict limitations, because of that impalpable thing known as professional ethics. It has been permissible for a law firm to advertise its name, within bounds of decorous dignity. But that is all.

However, as an organization including in its membership practically all practicing lawyers in the city, the bar association may fill a need that has been more vitally felt with each passing year.

There is no profession more urgently in need of public sympathy and understanding than the profession of the law today. There have been too many practitioners of the art of Blackstone who have been more like co-conspirators with criminals than members of a proud profession. Too often the attorney who has defended the accused in criminal trials has become an attorney criminal instead of a criminal attorney.

The bar is today taking active and successful steps to purge its ranks of undesirables. New rules of conduct and a new conception of ethics are being evolved. At such a time there is pressing need of full confidence of the public.

To secure that confidence there can be no more effective method than an advertising campaign such as that projected by the local bar association, the "Atlanta idea."

WHERE BUSINESS LEADERSHIP FAILS

Failure to present their own case before the general public, slowness in correcting false statements and in directing public knowledge along lines of business truth, is blamed by Deloss Walker, associate editor of Liberty Magazine, for much of the trouble private business now faces in America.

Business leaders themselves must remedy these faults, Mr. Walker said in his speech at a combined meeting of local civic and service clubs. He called upon business leadership to "actually lead the nation," and pointed to numerous examples of faulty thinking and irrational beliefs held by the people as a whole, solely because business leaders themselves have failed to disseminate the truth.

He told of a labor organizer who bitterly condemned a great industrial company because it had earned $8,000,000 profits in a year, yet failed to reveal that this came from a gross business of more than $900,000,000, representing less than 1 per cent profit.

He told of radicals who told striking workers it was unjust that executives of their company should receive salaries of $200,000 or $300,000 per year, but failed to show that the total executive salaries of that organization represented only 4 cents per day for each worker. Thus, he declared, for 4 cents a day the worker got all the benefit of all the executive management of that business, the management which created the jobs and made it possible for each worker to earn his own salary.

Future prosperity, Mr. Walker said, depends upon creation of more business, for it is only through business expansion that more jobs and more wealth for all can be produced.

He urged businessmen generally to work for a better understanding of the fundamental economic truths by all the people. This, he correctly declared, will create common sense throughout the land and will thus lead to better co-operation of all for a safe and sane prosperity.

THE INSTITUTE OF CITIZENSHIP

Topics announced for discussion at the eleventh annual Institute of Citizenship, to be held at Emory, Agnes Scott and Georgia Tech on February 14-17, include matters that should command the closest attention of all Georgians. They are subjects which, properly known and understood, will vitally affect the future welfare of the entire state.

"Georgia, Past, Present and Future," is the all-embracing topic for the opening days of the institute. The discussions will be led by leading thinkers from this and other states and should develop reactions of value.

Intangible resources, colleges, industry and engineering are included in the program for the other sessions. They offer a scope for thought literally unlimited.

The Institute of Citizenship has contributed much to the best thought of the state in past years, performing a service of analysis and diagnosis not provided by any other activity in the state. Each year it has grown in value and each year the state as a whole has grown better able to put to profitable use the deductions and conclusions made by those who attend the sessions.

Under the wise direction of Cullen B. Gosnell, the institute has proven an important contribution to Georgia progress and moves forward to serve in ever widening fields of thought.

Editorial of the Day

MR. HULL LAYS DOWN THE LAW

(From the Louisville Courier-Journal.)
With the same dignity and firmness with which he insisted upon American rights in the Panay affair, Secretary of State Cordell Hull insists upon American rights in the Rubens or "Robinson" case in Soviet Russia. To Moscow as to Tokyo Mr. Hull lays down the law, literally as well as figuratively, and demands an unequivocal answer.

The fact that the Rubens or "Robinsons" entered the Soviet Union on forged passports and may or may not have been implicated in espionage work does not end their connection with the United States as least as far as Mrs. Rubens is concerned. She is an American citizen. Her rights as a citizen must be protected. The case against her must be known as well as the charges on which she is held in a Russian jail. The Moscow regime in spite of pledges to the United States has sought to prevent the Washington government from protecting the rights of its citizens, the first duty of any government.

Though those pledges stipulated that if either country arrested a citizen of the other it immediately would inform the other, the Moscow regime waited for days before admitting that Mrs. Rubens was in jail and then only after being prodded by Washington. Though they granted the United States most favored nation treatment with respect to the arrest of nationals—Germany is notified immediately of such arrests and is allowed the right to visit the prisoner without delay—Mrs. Rubens has been held incommunicado and requests of embassy officials to get in touch with her have been denied.

Mr. Hull insists that Moscow live up to the Roosevelt-Litvinoff agreement, the basis of the present Soviet-American treaty. He stands on the sanctity of international accord without which there can be no peace and goodwill between nations.

The French Crisis and Its Meaning for Us

The state of affairs in France is not encouraging, and that state of affairs is not only supremely important for Europe, but it is of peculiar interest to us. Because we see in France, in a far more advanced stage, the operation of certain economic sophistries which have become the credo of a large part of our own population.

The experience of France would seem to demonstrate with great clarity that government spending, devaluation of the currency, and the raising of wages with the idea of creating purchasing power, will not of themselves create prosperity, nor even keep the production mechanism functioning. France also has a "crisis of confidence." The "capital strike" which we hear in this country has become much more acute there than here. Undoubtedly there will have to be some sort of exchange control to keep capital from rushing out of France at the present disastrous rate and to force it back. This will have to be done if the franc is to be saved. The Popular Front government, which resembles the New Deal in a great many ways, fell because it could not put an end to this financial hemorrhage, and the new government, which is politically weaker than its predecessor, has been no more successful. It has been said that 70 per cent of the working capital is being kept abroad, some of it in this country and some in London. This is perhaps an exaggeration, but the condition is grave is not open to question.

How far exchange control may go is not predictable. Until now France has not even taken such steps as we have taken in preventing gold transfers. But formal exchange control means government control of a country's foreign business and it might lead France in the direction of the controlled economies.

In France the same accusations are made against capital that are made here. It is unpatriotic, it is letting the country down, it is controlled by 200 families—in contrast to our present fiction of the state—and if it won't work, freely it must be conscripted. The conscription of capital, however, leads one a long step farther toward some form of Fascism.

A study of a few charts indicating what has happened to French production since the war throws much light on the situation than is created by political moralizing, particularly if one compares the course in France, where the fundamental bases of the economy have been extremely sound and healthy, with the course in Great Britain or Holland.

After the general devaluation, and the settlement of the currency and banking problems in 1936, production in most European countries showed a more or less strong upward trend. The League of Nations figures, however, which take 1929 as 100, show that through 1936 and 1937 there has been no improvement in basic production in France, despite the devaluation which occurred at the end of September, 1936, and despite the enormous budget deficit and government spending, 32.1 per cent of which, in the present budget, is for armaments.

Theoretically devaluation should help trade. Nevertheless, the balance of foreign trade in France in the third quarter of 1936 was unfavorable by 673,000,000 francs, and in the second and third quarters of 1937 was unfavorable to the extent of 1,500,000,000 francs. In France have risen about 50 per cent since the Popular Front government came into power, but the cost of living has risen from 100 as of the first half of 1936 to 128, a rise out of the first half of 1936 to 102 in the middle of last year.

The failure of France to recover is also reflected in stock prices, and in bond prices. Dutch government credit, as reflected in the yield of government bonds, radically improved in a time when French government credit declined. French government bonds are held by the small middle class and their purchasing power declined from 100 to 80.

The sophistry which has ruled the French working classes ever since the Popular Front government came in, is precisely the one enunciated time and again by some of our own Deal spokesmen and labor leaders, namely, that you can increase purchasing power by raising wages, and solve unemployment by shortening hours, without at the same time increasing the per capita productivity of the workers either by technological improvement or by more efficient work. This theory has been sold to the French working classes by demagogic politicians.

It is as much the economic theory of the Confederation Generale du Travail as it is of the CIO, and for that matter of the AFL in this country. The advent of the Blum government resulted in an enormous expansion of trade union organization under the aegis of a friendly government, an expansion which, there as here, was overdue, for the condition of the French industrial worker really required an increase of his collective bargaining power.

The French worker is not revolutionary. He does not wish to change the form of government under which he lives. He honestly believes that by insisting on radical wage increases, by applying the universal 40-hour week, and seeking by sit-down strikes to enforce the stretchout, he is helping to end unemployment, and the economy by increased purchasing power in the hands of the masses, and thus save democracy from Fascism. Labor leadership in France has misled the rank and file to the point where they cannot control it any longer.

In this they have the co-operation of the Communists. The Communist leadership is better trained theoretically than most working class leadership. They know perfectly well that this all nonsense. They know that while they are advocating a stretchout system in France, Stakhanovism is introduced in Soviet Russia. The strategy of the Communists makes sense, however, because their object is to break capitalism by advocating measures which are incompatible with any form of expanding production, in the hope of inheriting the debacle. Here, again, they are at one with the American Communists who pursue the same strategy for the same end and support whatever New Deal measures will play into their hands.

But the situation is serious from the viewpoint of the French defense. The French workers, who support the rearmament program and are second to no class in France in their ardor to protect France from Fascist aggression, are balking at the use of electric power in the nationalized munitions factories, and the result is that the rearmament program is running far behind schedule and costing far more than it should.

In France one hears precisely what one heard in Germany in the early 1930's: "Cela ne peut pas durer." "This cannot last." A Frenchman who is in close touch with the situation at home told me this week "We would have Fascism in France already if Germany and Italy had not done it first."

There is the same demand on the part of the middle classes for "social and national disciplines" which is the precursor of all Fascist revolt. Fascism seems to be staying off in France only by the Frenchness of the French.

I have made the comparison with Holland because the social objectives upon whose desirability reformist governments capitalize, have been achieved in Holland in a relatively grandiose fashion without crippling the entire economy of private enterprise.

Real wages, as contrasted with money wages, have gone up more radically in Holland than in France. Both stock prices and government credit have improved; the guilders have been devalued by only 19.5 per cent as contrasted with the French devaluation of 50 per cent; and has lately improved a full point, due to its strength as against both the dollars and the franc; the Dutch favorable balance of trade has risen from 24,000,000 to 40,000,000 guilders; superb public housing enterprises have been carried through; the social insurance, common to most countries today, have been supported. The difference is not in social objectives.

The difference is that the Dutch have not accepted the idea that a nation gets rich by increasing costs without increasing efficiency, and without leaving a margin for profit which galvanizes savings for productive investment purposes. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

CHURCH AND PRESS

Four young newspapermen, Luke Greene, Albert Halley, Johnny Bragg and Reed Wynn, editors of the reportorial staff of The Constitution, were the honor guests of the Young People's Department of our Sunday school last Sunday morning, and Mr. Greene made a talk on the church and the press which I regard as one of the best interpretations of that subject I have ever heard.

Mr. Greene told the 250 young men and women who followed his interesting address very closely, that one of the definitely hopeful signs of the times is the growing spirit of co-operation between the church and the press. He pointed out the fact that their wholesome relationship has been steadily growing stronger in the United States where we not only believe, but insist, upon a free church in a free state, freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and freedom of religious belief.

"A careful review of the press of today reveals the friendly attitude of the press toward the church in the fact that many stories appear daily in the news columns regarding the widespread ministries of the church, and the editorial features of practically every newspaper includes contributions of well-known churchmen and discussions on the part of well known every editorial writer of questions which have to do with the moral well-being of the community and the nation," said Mr. Greene.

Lawrence L. Gellerstedt, Atlanta banker and superintendent of our Young People's Department, said to me after listening to Mr. Greene.

"The presence of these newspapermen and the address of Mr. Greene this morning is one of the many fine tokens of our generation. The young men and women of this department have come with every phase of the commercial, industrial and professional life of Atlanta, and I am happy to find that they are laying the foundations of their careers in religious faith which means that the business and professional leaders of tomorrow will have the right attitude toward man and God."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

No Word About Toil
NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Roosevelt's book, "This Is My Story," neglects to answer an important question which is sure to occur to anyone who was not born to riches. Although it speaks glibly of inheritances, of European journeys, of estates on Long Island and up the Hudson and on Campobello, and of nurses, governesses, butlers, valets and cooks. It says never a word about toil. Dozens, possibly as many as a hundred, of Roosevelt's Delanos and other members of the clan are introduced, all seeming to have sources of income, but the only mention that I can recall of anyone's intimate involvement in the task of making a living as most of us work is a reference to someone who "went to business."

Now, mention of this peculiarity will be taken by some as a dirty dig at the President and his program, but that is not my purpose. As a critic of the President or his works it would refute itself. But the President, from time to time, has given an impression that he heartily detests people who by their own skill and diligence accumulate wealth, starting from scratch, and that he wants to discredit that which, for lack of a better word, may be called success.

It is not merely that they are to be taxed. That is now thoroughly understood and accepted, though not always with good grace. Mr. Roosevelt goes beyond that and seems to have a desire to rebuke those who rolled their own and turn popular hatred on them. They are a mixed lot, including some wolves and chisellers, but including also a great many who were bound to make good under the rough-and-tumble rules which governed the game, because they worked harder and thought faster and bigger than the mediocrities and loafers.

Is This Threat To Ambition? The President appears to promote the idea that it is shameful to make a lot of money, and inasmuch as money is the yardstick by which success is measured in this primitive country, his attitude seems to threaten ambition.

Income, like taxes, is produced by the sweat of those who toil, but in the case of the man or woman who sees opportunity and works hard to exploit it, possibly after an early career of drudgery and little or no privilege, the degree of the indictment should be second or third, at worst.

Mrs. Roosevelt writes that her grandfather Hall never engaged in business but lived on what his father and mother gave him. Her father took part of his inheritance to go around the world and hunted in India, after which he engaged in business—an evil occupation these days. There is mention of a high dog-cart and of a favorite hunter, of many fox terriers and Bar Harbor, of a house with nine bedrooms and four domestic servants' rooms, and of an aunt who was such a poor sailor that she always went to bed immediately on boarding the boat, indicating that ocean voyages were routine in the family.

Kentucky Coal Mines
In 1908 Mr. Roosevelt went on a trip with his Uncle Warren Delano to inspect some coal mining property in which the family "was interested" in Harlan county, Kentucky, which has since become the most notorious field in the country in the matter of oppression, poverty and the exploitation of the serfs.

The clan in its various branches must have enjoyed a good income in those days from the sweat of those who toiled, and Mrs. Roosevelt gives an impression that the property from which the income came was inherited. The President himself was endowed so that when he came of age, and married, he did not have to take his bride for a nickel car ride, and then to a home in a furnished room with a gas plate in the corner for light housekeeping. They took a ready-made home before he had even started to work, and obviously the toil of someone was producing the income which enabled them to do this.

Now he has had all this, the luxury and pleasure and freedom from necessity and care, and his future is assured. He may have decided to leave the experience that it is not all that up-from-under people think it is.

I am not sure I get Mr. Roosevelt's idea. He and his lived the life of Riley, and largely on money which just rolled in. Are we to understand that he now thinks it was wrong of his forebears to accumulate that wealth and of him and his other heirs to live on the dividends?

Because if so it took him a long time to reach that conclusion. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Poison Is No Less Poison Because The Label Says It Is Beneficial

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The Ludlow amendment is safely pigeon-holed for the moment, but the danger of it is not ended and people should examine it more closely while they have time. Its avowed purpose is to keep us out of war. And since our people hate and dread war, many of them hurrah for the amendment without stopping to consider what its actual effect would be. As usual, they believe the medicine good because the label is noble.

But the amendment, while permitting congress to declare war in case of invasion, would not permit us to wage war outside our own borders without a vote of the people—and in that innocent-sounding clause is the worst mixture of absurdity, contradiction and danger yet devised by well-meaning simplicity. In the first place, it asks the impossible. People would vote for or against a war on foreign soil, and no man can know where a war will be fought. The last one won't be the next one.

We would wage war on foreign soil only on two conditions: By attacking a weak nation, or by having England's fleet, or another nation wait patiently for our election returns to decide whether to begin firing or switch off the armaments.

Suppose, also, that some nation is brazenly fishing our waters or otherwise imposing on us. The President protests. But the other nation knows he can do nothing without calling an election. Does a tramp stripping a clothes line heed the growls of a dog that is tied?

China's plight, and our own history, prove beyond question that weakness invites abuse. So beyond question the offense would continue and increase, despite protests, till war became inevitable. For the President, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, could and would use the navy to stop such abuses, and the first use of force would mean war, anywhere and everywhere, despite any number of amendments. SILHOUETTES

One truth I've noticed,
Strolling streets,
Should bring good cheer
To flirts;
The gals who boast
The shapeliest legs,
All wear the short-
Est skirts.

Personally,

I Enjoyed It.

"The Man in the Tree" to my mind, proved good entertainment as presented this week at the Atlanta theater. A gang of us attended the private preview on Sunday night and left unanimous in agreement that we had enjoyed it.

The play's chief fault, if faults must be found, is that it is not yet quite as concise in construction as it should be, if it is to become an outstanding success.

All successes of the stage possess that camel-like, diamond sharp quality which makes every auditor feel as though it can never be forgotten. The lines must be etched in memory so strongly, situations and plot must be so vividly impressed, that every member of every audience, leaving the theater, just can't help talking about it, or quoting from it, to all they meet.

"The Man in the Tree" does not possess this sharp quality. Otherwise, however, it is well written, well staged and highly amusing. It is one of that category where one character lives in different periods. King of the Hapsburgs, it is in reverse. This time the datelines are 1832 and 1938. And the man of 1832, reasonably enough, decides after watching life in 1938 for a few hours, that he has died and gone to hell.

The First Newspaper?

When was the first daily newspaper published?

Seems to me I have heard various stories about that event. Wasn't there a book not so many years ago that claimed a certain Italian of the Middle Ages was the grand sire of all yellow journalism? However, from Ada Ramp Walden, of Augusta, comes an interesting revelation. She has in her possession a copy of Godey's Ladies' Book of 1830, which states that the first newspaper appeared in England shortly after the defeat of the Spanish Armada.

"After the defeat of the Spanish Armada," says the magazine, "great interest was excited in every class, which gave rise to an important invention—newspapers. Previous to this, all articles of intelligence had been circulated in manuscript, and all political remarks were issued in the shape of pamphlets."

"The peculiar convenience of uniting these two subjects in a periodical publication becoming obvious to the ministry, there appeared some time in April, 1598, the first number of the English Mercury, which appeared daily."

Number 50, dated July 23 of the same year, is the earliest specimen of the work extant while preserved in the British Museum. I'd like to see it. My oldest newspaper, kept it at home, is a copy of the London News, published in 1804.

Sometimes

I'm Forgetful.

Sometimes I get quite forgetful about the rules of etiquette. O, my, yes.

Frinstance, several times, recently, I've committed the terrible faux pas of removing my hat when women are present in a business building elevator.

Of course every man at all familiar with Emily Post—wonder if any man, really, could get familiar with Emily?—knows hats should only come off in elevators of clubs, private homes, and such places. In business circles, the hat stays on.

Building managers claim that the removal of hats in elevators is not only bad manners, but that it increases crowding discomforts, tends to slow service and contributes to accidents.

I wouldn't know about those features of the problem. All I know is that it is a sign of poor training. No gentleman would remove his hat when a lady enters a business elevator. Such actions reveals him, definitely, as a mere pretender after savoir faire. Just a person of the lower classes striving, pitifully, to be middle class. Or just an absentminded boob. Like me, myself, I.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, February 3, 1913:
"Atlanta is much more sinned against than sinning, and it is through the medium of none others than her ministers of the gospel and overambitious reformers, endowed with microscopic eyes and megaphonic voices, that the false report of her shamelessness has gone abroad in the land, in effect, the opinion of Rev. E. Dean Ellenwood, pastor of the First Universalist church, in the sermon which he delivered Sunday night."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, February 3, 1888:
"Everybody who had to face the intolerable dust on yesterday will be glad to know that Mr. J. C. Kimball will put on the sprinklers this morning, though it is a month ahead of the regular season."

Sunken Treasure.

In 1780 H. M. S. Hussar sank in New York harbor with gold and silver, estimated to be worth $5,000,000. There it still remains awaiting recovery.

Announces His Platform

D. T. MINHINETT.

DWIGHT MINHINETT OFFERS PLATFORM

Buckhead Justice of Peace Opposes Judge Luther Z. Rosser.

Dwight T. Minhinnett, justice of the peace in the Buckhead district, yesterday announced his platform for the March 2 primary in which he will oppose Judge Luther Z. Rosser for the chief judgeship of municipal court.

Minhinnett qualified for the race shortly before the entry list closed Monday. His statement follows:

The present chief judge of the municipal court has held office by appointment for 24 years. For a number of years he prevented the passage of a law to require his election by the people.

The chief judge had his salary fixed by the legislature in 1936, and now receives a salary of $8,400 per year, as compared with the $7,000 salary of the chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia. Five thousand dollars per year would be ample compensation for the services rendered by the chief judge of the municipal court. This is the amount paid superior court judges by the state.

There are five judges of the municipal court. If they each received a salary of $5,000 per year during the term for which they are elected, this alone would affect a saving of $80,400 to the taxpayers of the county of Fulton.

My candidacy will afford the people an opportunity to pass upon the record of the present chief judge of the municipal court.

There has never been any harsh treatment of jurors, lawyers, officers, parties or witnesses in the court in which I serve. All persons appearing there are treated courteously regardless of their social or financial position. If elected chief judge of the municipal court it will be my purpose to conduct the office with dignity, courtesy and fairness to the end that justice alone will be served. I believe that I can aid in operating this court at less cost to the taxpayers and litigants and with greater efficiency.

NEW PROSECUTIONS OF OIL COMPANIES

U. S. To Press Charges Against 24 Firms.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—The Justice Department, successful in recent anti-trust prosecution of 16 major oil companies at Madison, Wis., announced today it would press charges next fall against 24 oil companies and 46 individuals.

Attorney General Cummings said they would be brought to trial on an indictment returned by a federal grand jury at Madison in December, 1936. The indictment charges the oil companies with fixing uniform margins of profit for gasoline jobbers throughout the middle west.

Those indicted, Cummings said, include the 16 companies and 25 of the 30 individuals convicted January 22 at Madison on charges of conspiring to fix the wholesale price of gasoline.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Earlier Compensation Payments Sought by Byrnes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, introduced today a bill to amend the social security law and permit states to begin compensation payments one year after enactment of their unemployment laws.

The act now requires the lapse of a two-year period to build up reserves.

His bill also would require the establishment of merit basis standard for state employees in all social security divisions for which the federal government makes allocations to cover administrative costs.

EPISCOPAL BISHOPS CONFER HERE TODAY

Session To Hear U. S. Head; Church and Negroes Main Topic.

Atlanta today will be host to at least 20 bishops of the Episcopal Church, including the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States and its missions abroad.

The visit today will mark the first time Bishop Tucker has come to Atlanta since his election to the highest office January 1.

Called by the president of the fourth province, the Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, bishop of East Carolina, the conference will bring all the bishops of the province, which embraces the southeastern district, except those detained by illness.

Discussions will start at 10 o'clock this morning in the Biltmore hotel, with the problem of how to increase the work of the church among negroes, the main subject of discussion. The conference is being held at the request of the Rt. Rev. Frederick B. Bartlett, bishop of Idaho and secretary of the department of domestic missions of the national council of the church.

In explaining the purpose of the conference, Bishop H. J. Mikell, of the diocese of Atlanta, said last night that "it was no indication of the work of the church among negroes is failing."

"While it is not failing, this work is not progressing as rapidly as the church would like," he declared. "That is the reason for the conference. It may last for only one day, but sessions may be carried on two days."

No program has been set for the discussion among the bishops, who will take up the problem at the outset, and study it during the day. Sessions will be held both in the morning and afternoon.

The visiting bishops will be honored at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon in the grill room of the Georgian-Terrace hotel, sponsored by the Episcopal ministers of Atlanta, it was announced by the Rev. Woolsey E. Couch, of College Park.

Besides those mentioned, invitations to attend the conference were extended to Bishops Edwin A. Penick, Robert A. Gribbin, Kirkman G. Finlay, Albert S. Thomas, H. P. A. Abbott, Charles Clingman, James M. Maxon, Theodore D. Bratton, William Mercer Green, William G. McDowell, James C. Morris, Middleton S. Barnwell, Frank A. Juhan and John D. Wing.

The fourth province, known as the Province of Sewanee, is composed of 15 dioceses. Bishops whose work relates to home missions will be included in those attending the conference.

Measure Tabled As Peach Men Rally in Protest

Georgia peach growers called off a formal protest meeting yesterday after one of two legislative bills they are opposing was tabled in the house of representatives.

W. C. Bewley, of Macon, general manager of the Georgia Peach Growers' Exchange, said the delegation considered the measure "killed for this session." It would "discourage the operation of motor trucks in the Georgia peach belt because of a proposed tax of $50 for each operator and dealer," he declared.

The other bill, which Bewley said was opposed chiefly because of provisions which would authorize the commissioner of agriculture "to promulgate certain grades and fix minimum sizes," is not on the house's immediate calendar.

The delegation had gathered in the office of Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts to protest the measures when word came the house was acting on one of them. They went to the house when it was tabled and remained to hear Governor Rivers' address.

HALT THAT COLD!

Put the Brakes on It Fast With This Four-Way Treatment!

No cold can be given an inch! The more rope you give a cold, the more you do to hang yourself! No cold is a "light" cold. No cold can be ignored or neglected. The cold that is pooh-poohed today is the cold that takes a serious turn tomorrow.

Deal with a cold in a business-like manner. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection! Treat it with a cold medicine not a cure-all.

The Treatment That Answers!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

They are expressly a cold treatment, and not a "cure-all."

They are internal medication. Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of colds.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Grove's Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been in use over 40 years and are the largest-selling cold tablet in the world.

That, in itself, is enough to assure you of their efficacy and dependability.

Play Safe!

The moment you feel a cold coming on, do the wise thing. Go right to your drugist for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets. Start taking the tablets immediately and you'll usually break up the cold in 24 hours.

Bromo Quinine tablets come in 35c and 60c sizes. The 60c size is the better "buy." It gives you almost 20 per cent more for your money.

Ask your drugist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) and insist upon getting what you ask for. It's your money you're spending!

patronage of the 'Blue Eagle.' We can't understand it."

And other members of the Georgia contingent agreed with these sentiments.

Ready to Co-operate.
In spite of their disappointment at the ragged way in which the first day's session was conducted, the Georgia group are ready and willing to lend every co-operation to the government toward making the conference something of a success before adjournment tomorrow. They came to Washington to be helpful and they are not going to leave without exerting every effort to bring some sort of chaos out of today's "fiasco." Wellhouse and May will leave for Georgia late tomorrow evening with the feeling, they hope, that they had both learned something and contributed something toward business recovery all over America.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Representative Umstead, Democrat, North Carolina, chairman of the naval appropriations subcommittee, announced today he would retire from congress at the end of his present term.

Bill Abolishing Prison Commission, Creating Board Is Sent to Governor

Senate Wrangles Over Provision Requiring Rivers to Appear Present Members to New Body for Six-Year Terms; Vote There Is 23 to 19.

The general assembly, after hearing an address by Governor Rivers, spent most of yesterday on routine business, the house taking up only two bills neither of which was passed while the senate completed work on another of the prison reform bills and sent it to the Governor for his signature.

The house tabled a bill by Representative Brewton, of Evans county, seeking to regulate the marketing of truck farm produce and then removed amendments to a proposed act regulating photographers. The photographers bill lacked two votes of the 103 necessary for passage and its backers said they would ask reconsideration this morning.

Abolishes Commission.
The prison bill which went to the Governor abolishes the present three-member prison commission and recreates it as a board to handle all parole and probation matters. It is a companion measure to one already signed into law, setting up a new board of penal administration to supervise management of the state's prisons and all other prison functions.

Final legislative action consisted of the adoption by both houses of a conference committee compromise on amendments.

The house accepted the committee report with little argument by a vote of 119 to 5, but a sharp fight developed in the senate. It approved the report on a roll call vote of 23 to 19.

Senate opposition to adopting the compromise centered on a provision requiring the Governor to appoint on the new parole commission the present members of the prison commission for six-year terms.

In the original bill these three commissioners would have served as the parole board until next January 1, when the Governor would have been authorized to make new appointments. As the measure stands now, the commissioners will be retained in office for six years beginning February 15, the date set for the act to go into effect.

Senator Walter Harrison, of Millen, leading for the opposition, urged rejection of the whole report on the ground that "we are legislating by conference committees." He objected particularly to appointment of the parole commissioners for six-year terms, declaring the offices either should be elective or the terms be staggered.

Referring to members of the present prison commission as "old fossils," Harrison charged that they "have been granting paroles for political expediency."

"I hold no brief for Chairman Johns or for Vivian Stanley," he said. "Clem Rainey has been trying to do a good job. What we need is an appropriation to clean the cobwebs out of that office."

Unanimous Agreement.
Other principal amendments which remain in the bill through acceptance of the conference report provide that there must be unanimous agreement of the three commissioners before a parole is granted, and that the Governor is not required to approve paroles recommended by the board.

Under the bill he retains his constitutional power to commute death sentences, stay executions and grant pardons. He would act also in any case where a capital offense is involved.

'LITTLE BUSINESS' MEETING DISPERSED

being turned over to the group of miscellaneous subjects.

The plan is that each group shall bring its recommendations to a general meeting of the conference tomorrow. Judging by today's meeting, observers looked forward to another tumultuous session then.

Then, a group of ten is to be selected to carry the recommendations to the President. Factions were already forming today over the question of who the ten should be; vehement anti-New Dealers thunderously asserted that the committee should not be "packed."

The committee on unemployment adopted a resolution opposing "further undue government interference" with business and asking that "unwarranted and malicious attacks on business by administration representatives" be "permanently stopped."

It urged repeal of the undistributed profits tax, modification of the capital gains tax and that employers and employees "be held responsible for the execution of labor agreements."

The resolution said that the Wagner labor act as administered "is unfair and detrimental to business and discourages re-employment."

It also asked curtailment of government expenditures, balancing of the budget, abolishment of further tax-exempt securities, equalization of taxes for all federal, state and local governmental employees, and a "buy American" campaign.

The resolutions are to be presented to a full meeting of the conference tomorrow for approval prior to their presentation to President Roosevelt.

A new procedural idea was advanced by A. B. Comstock, of Boston, and received the approval of the committee on miscellaneous subjects.

He proposed that a three-man committee be appointed to confer with the chairmen of the various groups, they to appoint similar committees. All these committees or subcommittees would function as a general committee on resolutions.

Comstock was named chairman of the subcommittee for the committee on miscellaneous subjects. Other members were J. B. Miller, Clarksville, Tenn., and Folke Becker, Rhineclander, Wis.

General Session.
The general session was held in the auditorium of the Commerce Department where, four years and more ago, hearings on many NRA codes were conducted.

The meeting began with an address of welcome from Secretary Roper, who said it was "important that the procedure of this conference shall be such as to afford you full opportunity to present your facts," and hoped "that your proceedings will enable the President to get the picture of the situation as you see it and as you would like to have it presented."

Assistant Secretary Draper presented the temporary chairman of the conference, Fred Roth, a Cleveland, Ohio, shoe man.

An unidentified man entered a motion that Roth be made permanent chairman. An uproar of protest followed, and another delegate also unidentified, shouted that Roth had been "handpicked." Draper took the gavel, put the question and declared Roth elected. There was a loud protest, which Draper disregarded.

LIQUOR IN ATLANTA IN MARCH, IS PLAN

vannah yesterday immediately following his address to the general assembly. The liquor bill is on his desk. He announced that he had studied its provisions fully and would sign it as soon as the other bill reaches him.

The Governor held several conferences during the morning with

PETITION COMPLETED BY BAKER COUNTY
First Georgia county to place itself in position to hold a referendum to legalize liquor is Baker, of which Newton is the county seat.

Thirty-five per cent or more of the qualified voters of Baker county yesterday had signed the required petition to the ordinary seeking the election, it was reported. The ordinary must call the election within 30 days.

T. Grady Head, member of the present revenue commission, who is slated to be commissioner under the new law, the other members of the present commission are Comptroller General William B. Harrison and Judge J. B. Jones. The new revenue law makes Harrison comptroller and insurance commissioner. Judge Jones, it is understood, will be the new director of income tax collections for the revenue department.

Representative Hastings said that thus far the Georgia Local Option Association had acted only in Fulton county. He also is chairman for the fifth congressional district, which includes DeKalb county, but said that as far as he knew nothing was being done there in DeKalb.

Petitions in Many Counties.
Meanwhile petitions were being drawn up in numerous counties of the state. Reports from Savannah, Augusta, Albany and other so-called wet centers said that the formal calls for the elections would be laid before the respective ordinaries before the end of the week.

Baker county was the first county to get up the necessary names. The petition for the election in that county was filed late yesterday.

Hastings said that there are scores of petitions being circulated over Fulton county and that he believed numbers of the persons signing them were not registered voters.

"I have talked with Claude Mason, chief clerk in the ordinary's office, and we are arranging for a post card petition to be sent," he said. "We will mail out these cards to every registered voter in the county and when the necessary 17,000 have been mailed to Judge T. H. Jeffries we are sure he will call the election."

Hastings explained that in this manner the association he heads would be certain that every card mailed to Judge Jeffries would be signed by a registered voter.

"The ordinary petition would cause a great deal of trouble as the courthouse officials then would have to check each signature against the list of registered voters," he pointed out. "We believe that the post card method will be best."

Mail Cards at Once.
The cards, he added, would be printed today and would be placed in the mails tonight and tomorrow.

Meanwhile, although he has not yet been appointed administrator of the liquor tax act, Commissioner Head yesterday was flooded with queries about the operation of the law. Under the act the commissioner sets up rules and regulations under which the liquor business must operate. But Head hasn't even been named yet so he is answering no questions.

Officials at the capital pointed out that the law does not become operative until at least one county votes wet and until this vote is cast it is presumed no regulations will be issued.

Hastings estimated yesterday it would take nearly a week to get the required signatures in Fulton county and that if the election is held within 30 days the prospects are that legal liquor would be sold around March 15, maybe before.

In addition to Fulton county, the following counties voted wet in the referendum of June 8, last year: Appling, Baker, Bacon, Ben Hill, Berrien, Bibb, Brantley, Bryan, Bulloch, Camden, Candler, Charlton, Chatham, Clarke, Clayton, Clinch, Coffee, Decatur, DeKalb, Dougherty, Early, Echols, Emanuel, Evans, Glynn, Irwin, Jenkins, Lee, Long, Lowndes, McIntosh, Meriwether, Miller, Mitchell, Muscogee, Pierce, Polk, Quitman, Richmond, Seminole, "Tattall," Treuten, Upson, Ware and Wayne.

WEST END WOMAN WINS CONTEST
Mrs. Tom F. 660 Lawton St., S. W., Wins About Her "Happy Experience."

Mrs. Foster was the proud winner of first prize in last week's radio contest over Station WGST. She was not only glad to receive this first prize, but thinks that the general public should benefit by her "happy experience." Her prize winning letter follows:

"I've found Menthon-Mulsion the safe 'inside remedy' for coughs—the first dose just seemed to take hold and gave me quick relief from that awful irritating dryness, by supplying the needed moisture to my throat tissues, thus getting at the root of trouble and helping Nature in her fight against germs. And so because of my happy experience and for prompt, safe relief from irritating coughs, I always use Nature's Helper—Menthon-Mulsion—and get rid of my cough the Natural Way."—(adv.)

Rivers Requests Levy on Non-Essentials

Only Practical Solution of Estimated $2,500,000 Deficit, He Says.

per cent and some leaders said this bill might be called up and a luxury tax substituted.

"The only practical way I can see to raise the money necessary to pay the state budget 100 per cent is to recommend to you that you pass a luxury or non-essentials special tax to raise the additional $2,500,000, just as you have taxed beer, wine, tobacco and expect to tax liquor," he said.

"I recommend that you substitute a luxury or non-essential tax bill for one of the pending revenue bills, ripe for their reading in the house, where all revenue bills must originate, and that you pass promptly a luxury or non-essentials tax to raise two and a half million dollars revenue for the state, plus whatever amount you want to give back to the counties."

"I know this recommendation will not meet with favor universally. But I believe the people of the state as a whole would rather have a luxury tax bill passed and the money raised to pay this budget 100 per cent and take care of the counties adequately than not to have it passed, and let the needs go unmet."

Takes Responsibility. "I stand ready to take the full responsibility of the passage of it on my shoulders, if you wish, to complete financing the program and helping the counties. I know what adequate financing of this program means to this state and I know that the benefits of the program far outweigh the burdens that will be imposed as a result of the passage of such a tax."

"I wish to emphasize again, however, that if you do not wish to pass a luxury or non-essentials tax to raise the needed $2,500,000 for the state, I will approve any tax measure or measures you will pass to raise the money needed."

"I am working 15 to 18 hours each day, enjoying my work. I sometimes get tired and tired. But I am giving the people of the state this 15 to 18 hours every day of my time at hard conscientious work, trying to make a good Governor. Doing this myself, I feel free to ask each member of the house and senate that this week we stay in session long hours each day and night to finish this job so we can adjourn Saturday night by midnight."

"Every member has discussed pro and con every sort of tax for weeks, and every member knows whether or not he or she is willing to vote for a luxury tax to finish the job, and if not, what tax, if any, you will vote for to finish the job."

Won't Wipe Out Deficit. The Governor told legislators that liquor and tax reorganization bills would not wipe out the prospective state deficit.

He reminded them that county governments are insisting they need an additional $2,500,000 yearly from the state to offset losses in revenue due to homestead and household property exemptions.

The 1937 generally set the 1937-1938 budget at $44,000,000.

State Auditor Tom Wisdom, in a summary of anticipated revenue and necessary payments, estimated the state faces a deficit of $3,842,643.15 for the fiscal year ending next June 30 and $6,018,300 for the fiscal year following.

The summary was prepared for Governor Rivers; copies were delivered to members of house and senate. The Governor said "the sentiment of most of the assembly members I have contacted seems to be that we should first tax the luxuries or non-essentials before we tax necessities; that we should tax something the people do not have to have to use... before we tax those necessities of life that they cannot live without."

Practical Situation. "I know that tax economists and fiscal experts consider special

College Park Dry If Fulton Goes Wet

College Park will remain an arid spot even if Fulton county goes wet in the referendum on liquor, it was revealed yesterday.

The community's charter prohibits sale of any kind of spirituous beverage, including beer and wine, and the outcome of the referendum vote will not change the status of the charter.

The situation differed in other suburban communities, however. East Point had a high license fee clause in its charter, but this was eliminated at the last regular session of the assembly.

Hapeville's charter leaves the liquor question up to the mayor and city council. Beer and wine are now on sale in Hapeville, and indications point toward liquor being prohibited. However, a fight looms in this connection, it was reported.

taxes unsound and prefer a general tax, such as a general retail sales tax, a gross income tax or a gross receipts tax to special taxes. I have held that opinion, too. Nevertheless, we have to face a practical situation."

He said that until such time as the state adopted a "general broad base" for taxation, "we apparently can only hope to finance our budget by special taxes."

He said the liquor bill might raise $2,000,000 yearly, and the tax reorganization bill would provide $1,000,000 in economies and additional revenue.

He called attention to the lack of funds for payment of teachers' salaries for January. Rivers said if legislators thought it "wise to not pass any other revenue measures, that is your prerogative, and I will do the very best possible with what money becomes available. But it is my duty to let you know the tragic plight of our schools and other activities if we cannot pay them as we have promised."

Outlines Program. The Governor outlined a course of action he recommended for the assembly to take, including passage of the prison reform measures, the major two of which already are approved, the civil service bill, and a measure providing local distribution of motor vehicle license tags and compulsory return of vehicles for ad valorem taxes.

The Governor called upon the legislature to care for school children, inmates of Milledgeville hospital and other eleemosynary institutions.

"We must keep faith. I am not going to let them down and I don't want you to let them down."

Pro rata Distribution. "I think that whatever amount you give to the counties you should distribute on the basis of their proportionate part of the loss from the home and household exemptions, as compared with the total state loss from these exemptions. This would be fair. I think it should be distributed for the purpose of paying court expenses in these counties so as to make the distribution legal. The practical handling of the funds down in the counties will take care of itself."

He recommended for immediate passage the following:

1. The prison reform bills, passed by the senate, which he explained are designed to better the entire prison and parole system. He pointed out that motion picture newsreels are showing films depicting the change in the prison system, and declared that these films will offset the harm done the state's reputation by Robert Elliott Burns' book, "I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang," and the movie based on that theme.

Backs Civil Service. The bill to place state employees under civil service. The Governor pointed out that this will be the only plank of the Democratic platform not enacted unless the assembly sees fit to adopt it before closing. He said he thought it a wise measure, and promised to help repeal it at the next session if his administration of the act is not satisfactory.

3. A measure permitting the highway department to allocate funds to the rural post roads system.

4. A bill allocating $50,000 from a forfeited cold storage warehouse contract to the state radio station, WGST.

5. That the following bills be enacted to insure better facilities for caring for the tubercular, the insane and the blind and deaf and dumb: (a) An amendment to the chain store tax act to increase the levy on large chains; (b) Permission to redistrict W. and A. railroad rentals to erect and repair buildings at the state asylum, if the rentals can be discounted again on a favorable market; (c) An amendment to the chain store tax act placing the appropriations from this source at the disposal of the eleemosynary institutions; and (d) Passage of the senate-approved debenture bill, which would allow the use of next year's revenue from chain store taxes immediately to aid the state asylum and the eleemosynary institutions.

6. The bill providing local distribution of automobile licenses, which also has the effect of aiding county tax collectors and receivers who lost fees under the exemption act.

Supports Herty Foundation. 7. The senate measure to create the Herty Foundation and the house bill to appropriate $20,000 to the cause of promoting the paper pulp industry in Georgia. Also that the bill dividing excess funds derived from the state contracts board between the Herty Foundation and the wild life division for past debts be adopted.

8. That a revolving fund of $100,000 be set up in the state treasury for the parks department to build cabins and for improvements in state parks which will pay a return to the treasury.

9. That bills strengthening the power of the legislature be adopted. One would require senate confirmation of the Governor's appointments and another would allow the general assembly to convene itself in times of emergency when the Governor fails or refuses to call a session.

The Governor recommended the "uniform warehouse act" and other acts endorsed by the State Department of Agriculture designed to benefit the farmers, be passed.

Won't Let Them Down. "Thousands of school children of the state have come to the capitol while you have been in session. They have come by the Governor's office. They were happy because of our appropriation to the schools. We must keep faith with these children. I am not going to let them down and I don't want you to let them down."

"Thousands of unfortunate people I have seen and you have seen suffering at Milledgeville will have to have their appropriations cut unless we pay the budget bill in full. They should not be let down."

MILLICAN TO HEAD SAFETY COMMITTEE

Succeeds W. C. Hendrix as Chairman of Chamber Traffic Group.

State Senator G. Everett Millican was named chairman of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, C. F. Palmer, president of the organization, announced last night.

Millican succeeds Walter C. Hendrix, who has served two years as chairman. Hendrix continues as a committee member.

Millican said he "hoped to carry on the work of reducing accidents" and urged co-operation of all citizens in accident prevention. Hendrix was responsible for bringing to this city Lieutenant Frank Krenel, who installed features of the famous "Evanston system" here. Lieutenant Krenel will urge city council tonight to complete phases of the system and to keep an officer in charge of the work.

Cuts Third Set of Teeth. Discards $175 Molars.

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 2.—(AP)—A 54-year-old Lynn furniture dealer today reported he was cutting his third set of teeth and that it was proving a costly experience.

George H. Parks said when three new molars and two incisors cut through his gums he had to discard and sell, for $2, a set of false teeth that had cost him $175 25 years ago.

His dentist advised him, he said, that new teeth would follow and that all apparently would be normal.

"NERVOUS HEADACHES" RELIEVED TWO WAYS WITH BAYER ASPIRIN

1. Pain is eased by one action well-known to scientists.
2. Nerves are quieted by soothing effect of medicine on sensation of pain.

Insist on Genuine Bayer Aspirin and simply do this—

All people who suffer occasionally from headaches ought to know this way to quick relief.

At the first sign of such pain, take two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a half glass of water. Sometimes if the pain is more severe, another dose is necessary later, according to directions.

If headaches keep coming back we advise you to see your own physician. He will look for the cause in order to correct it.

The price now is only 15¢ for twelve tablets or two full dozen for 25 cents—virtually, only a cent apiece.

THE REASON BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is dissolving. The speed of disintegration enables genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.

Kirby Wins Two Matches; Plays Berg in Semi-Finals Today

Spinster Jane, a Pointer, Wins Derby Stakes at Albany

SETTER HANDLED BY SCOTT TAKES RUNNER-UP SPOT

All-Age Competition Under Way; To Be Finished Today.

By JACK TROY.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 2.—It isn't often that a man comes to a field trial and steals the show.

So it isn't at all unusual that Bob Sealy, of Cottonwood, Ala., is seeing a tailor to have the buttons sewed back on his vest. Several people narrowly escaped injury talking to Sealy just after the Derby was concluded.

Sealy, owner and handler of Jeanette Sealy Momoney, 11-month-old English setter, today followed up a top victory in the puppy stake of Tuesday with a third place in the Derby stake.

Jeanette Sealy Momoney did her work on opening day. She won the puppy stake and then found and handled a covey which placed her in the Derby stake, as well.

As was expected, Spinster Jane, owned and handled by Earl Potter, was the big dog in the Derby stake. Spinster Jane, liver and white female pointer, did its work flawlessly yesterday, finding and holding a covey while Handler Earl Potter, a comparative novice who works like a veteran, walked up to shoot over it.

Major Trammell Scott, Atlanta, came through with his second win of the trials in the Derby stake. He got second place with Hill-bright Equipoise, black and white setter, owned by M. G. Dudley.

Trammell has sort of characterized his baseball career in this greatest of all southern amateur field trials.

He won third place on opening day, second place today and, if all goes well, he may come riding home with the top winner in the all-age stake tomorrow.

A second series is definite for the all-age stake. Ten heats will be run today and three more must be finished tomorrow before the judges can decide.

Flut of Mirador, liver and white female pointer, owned and handled by B. C. Goss, of New York, did great work in the all-age series today.

Dogs well in the running, in fact, besides those that will range tomorrow, include Mississippi Broomhill Jake, owned and handled by B. C. Goss, of Cincinnati; Wingan's Queen, owned by Raymond Hoagland, and handled by Trammell Scott; Springwood Folly, pointer, owned by Thomas C. Chubb, and handled by G. C. Hamrick; Norlas Aerotype, female pointer, owned by Bob Woodruff, and handled by Trammell Scott; and Shane Macree, setter, owned and handled by Dick Dodd, Atlanta.

It seemed today, and it was a fact, that in almost every brace, Major Scott was down handling a dog. He has two chances to come in first tomorrow. These are better odds, of course, than the odds on one dog against the field.

There was a remarkable gallery. Riders and wagons numbered more than 40. And there were many ladies. Among them were Mrs. Walter Burt, Mrs. Frances Wetherby, Mrs. Alex Freeman, Mrs. R. H. Warren Jr., Mrs. Homer Bullard, Mrs. H. W. Maclin, Mrs. Leo Leader and Miss Sara Farrar.

The windup is expected to come about in a blaze of glory today.

This Form Won Opening Event Of Field Trials

Dot Sealy Momoney, shown on point, displays the sort of form which brought the English setter the puppy stake at the Southern Field Trials in Albany Tuesday. At the right, the handlers of the first three dogs in the puppy event proudly pose with their entries. J. R. Sealy (left), of Cottonwood, Ala., holds Dot Sealy Momoney. Earl Potter, owner and handler of Blue Springs Dot, pointer, is shown in the middle with his dog which placed second. The gentleman at the

DOROTHY SHOOTS 6 UNDER PAR 76 TO UPSET MILEY

Atlanta Girl Sets Tourney Record; Wins Matches, 3-1, 6-4.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 2. (AP)—Much as expected, Patty Berg breezed through two matches today to reach the Miami Biltmore women's golf semi-finals, but there she must contend with a new threat to her winter circuit supremacy—young Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta.

Miss Kirby, southern women's champion, startled the galleries by firing a six-under-par 76 in ousting Comedalist Marion Miley, of Fort Pierce, Fla., 3 and 1, this morning, then calmly disposed of Mrs. Lillian Zech, of Chicago, 6 and 4, in the afternoon.

The Minneapolis red-head, meanwhile, turned back Sally Guth, of Webster Grove, Mo., 2 and 1, and Marian McDougall, of Portland, Ore., 5 and 4.

Mrs. Jane Coltrane Jameson, of West Palm Beach, Fla., will play Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., in the other semi-final match.

Mrs. Jameson, held even through the first nine by Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, this afternoon, then shot four birdies and an eagle to win handily, 5 and 4. Earlier she had eliminated Mrs. Mortimer May, of New York, 2 and 1.

Miss Hemphill trounced Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., last year's runner-up to Miss Berg here, 7 and 6, after defeating Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, of Cleveland, by the same score.

In other first-round matches Miss Traung defeated Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Washington, 5 and 4, Miss Bauer beat Kathryn Bragaw, of Orange, N. J., and 3. Mrs. Zech trimmed Mrs. Leon Solomon, of Memphis, Tenn., 4 and 2, and Miss McDougall eliminated Mrs. T. E. Schludberg, of Baltimore, 2 and 1.

KIRBY IN HIGH. Miss Kirby, just 18 years old, shifted her game into high gear this morning after a qualifying score of 91 had left her virtually ignored by the experts. Out in 38, she was just one up on Miss Miley at the turn, but the Georgia girl slipped off four birdies coming back for another 38. Her 76, lowest competitive score ever registered by a woman on this course, nevertheless will not go into the books as a record because it was in match play.

Maureen Orcutt set the course record, 79, in a 1934 medal round.

Walker Off Today For Millrose Meet

Perrin Walker, former Tech track star, and now a student at Oglethorpe, will leave Atlanta today at 12:30 to compete in the annual Millrose games in Madison Square Garden Saturday.

George Griffin, coach of the Tech track team, announced Walker had been training on the Jacket cinder path because there is no track at Oglethorpe. He also said Walker had accepted invitations to run in the Boston A. A. games February 12, and the New York Athletic Club games February 29. Walker will compete in the dash events in each of these meets.

Griffin announced that the Tech track practice will start February 14.

Watering Baseball From Roots—Landis Likes Scott's Plan

(Editor's Note: Break o' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 2.—A bit of baseball has been injected into the field trial scene due to the appearance here of Major Trammell Scott, the new and democratic president of the Southern league.

It may be rank treason to talk anything but bird dogs at a field trial but the major just naturally can't help it. He's grown up with 'em both—the field trials and baseball.

He may talk bird dogs at a baseball meeting and vice versa. He is interested in seeing both sports—and both great sports in their own right—do well.

I think you will agree that the recent experience he had at the baseball writers' dinner in New York was great stuff for a country boy, so to speak.

There were there 1,000 or so of the biggest names in the country at the dinner and only a select few seated on the dais.

There was Keneas Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, and seated at his left was the president of the Southern league.

Major Scott admitted it was one of the biggest thrills he ever had sitting there in front of 1,000 baseball men and talking baseball with Judge Landis and absorbing some of the high commissioner's sound principles.

Somewhere in the back part of his mind was the southern amateur field trials. But this was one time he failed to get in a boost for bird dogs or engage someone in a friendly argument over the merits of pointer versus setter.

For one night he became a country boy in the big city again—and profited tremendously by the experience.

WATERING IT FROM THE ROOTS. They talked of watering baseball from the roots, of getting the kids interested in the game again, and the commissioner asked him about the Southern league election—if harmony existed after Judge John D. Martin exercised his option to vote and break a deadlock.

He was assured that harmony did prevail and that the other seven Southern league clubs would get fully as much attention as Atlanta, naturally.

They talked along these lines. And when the judge got up to speak he followed the thought of "watering baseball from the roots" and so it is that great oaks from little acorns grow. It is a homey philosophy—this business of watering baseball from the roots. And very sound philosophy, too.

The new president of the Southern league always has endeavored to create new interest in the game among youngsters. He would like to see every kid going around the streets in the good old summertime with a baseball glove fastened to his belt.

That's largely the way it was in what so many still fondly term as the good old days. Times change. It seems there are too many diversions nowadays, too many places to go, too

WILDCATS GET DE CORREVONT

Prep Star, Sought by 75 Schools, To Play for Northwestern.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (AP)—Bill De Correvont, America's outstanding prep gridiron star, decided today to enroll at Northwestern University next fall.

De Correvont in a statement said he wished to play at a school near his home, and that was his reason for selecting Northwestern. Besides two or three teammates on the Austin High school, of which he was a star, also have planned to enter Northwestern.

De Correvont, 19 years old, will enter Northwestern with the most sensational record ever achieved by a prep football player. In 10 games last season he scored 35 touchdowns, nine of them in one game, and registered a total of 211 points.

No less than 75 universities and colleges had made overtures to him.

De Correvont, with his mother, and E. A. Ryan, personnel director of Austin High, attended the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's Day, as the guest of the Warner Brothers, motion picture producers, who were said to be anxious to have him enroll at the University of Southern California.

De Correvont planned to accept employment until time for him to matriculate at Northwestern where he will take a course in physical education.

The young athlete was considered one of the best outfielders in high school baseball, also.

Wycoff Faces European Friday

Everett Marshall, former world's champion, will not be able to go through with his scheduled appearance here Friday night, it was announced yesterday by L. C. Warren.

However, the Danish star will definitely wrestle here on Friday of next week. He is recovering from a leg injury in a St. Louis hospital.

Tomorrow night's headliner will pair off Doug Wycoff, former Georgia Tech grid ace, who is a remarkably improved wrestler, against Bill Bartush, the rugged European warrior. They stole the show last week when they grappled to a rousing draw and fans insisted upon a return meeting over the longer route.

Babe Zaharias, the untamed Greek, goes against Rosy (Red) Ryan, of Ireland, in the semi-final. Ryan made several impressive appearances at the ball park last summer and is a real performer.

Jimmy Morris, Memphis, and Paul Harper, S. M. U. product, open the bill in a one-fall affair.

'Y' Wrestlers Meet Chattanooga Tonight

The wrestling match between the Atlanta and Chattanooga 'Y' M. C. A.'s originally scheduled for Friday night has been shifted to tonight. The matches begin at 8 o'clock and will be held in the 'Y' gym.

Manager Sasseville, of the locals, announced his lineup as follows: 115 pounds, Sparky Anglin and William Holt; 125 pounds, Bob Cherry; 135 pounds, Pietro Doria and Howell Glass; 145 pounds, Mike Warr; 155 pounds, Jack Deacon and John Campbell; 165 pounds, Doug Shields and Tom Brown; 175 pounds, George Vasil, and heavyweight, Jim Pantello.

'Putting Was Good,' Says Dot of 2 Wins

By Dorothy Kirby.

MIAMI BILTMORE, Feb. 2.—Whew—what a day and I'm glad it is all over. Marion Miley and I really had a match this morning. It was close all the way. It ended on the 17th hole. I finished the round out and wound up with a 76, which was better than I expected, but it took that to beat Marion. She was playing nice golf.

I was putting well today. However, I don't intend to say anything about it, 'cause it might change by tomorrow and I will need all I can get then, for Patty Berg and I meet again.

I hope it will be different from what it was last time we played. Patty beat me about 4 and 2 in this same tournament last year. The other match will be between Kathryn Hemphill and Mrs. Jane Jameson. It looks as if these two meet in every tournament. This should be a swell match. I didn't care for this business of playing two matches in one day—it really wears you out. It took me quite a while to get going again this afternoon, but I finally started hitting the ball again on the back side.

Last night I took time out and went to the roller derby. It was something, too. I hear there is going to be one in Atlanta soon. I hope that is right, for it's lots of fun to watch. It seems the skaters, which are in teams, have to skate a certain number of miles, and go around a small track made of something like slate. When this certain number of miles completed the derby is over. I can't go into all the details about it, for I don't know them to begin with, but it was fun, anyway. None of that tonight, however. It's the bed for me. I have to get in shape for Patty.

Tech Leaves Today For L. S. U. Contest

Play Tigers Friday, Tulane Saturday Night; Nine Men Make Trip.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Nine members of the Georgia Tech basketball team will leave this afternoon at 6 o'clock by train for Louisiana and games with L. S. U. Friday night in Baton Rouge and Tulane in New Orleans Saturday night.

Players making the trip are Jones, Jordan, Johnston, Sims, Anderson, Smith, Peffal, Ebdon and Haymans.

The Jackets, undefeated this season and leaders of the Southeast conference, are facing tough games in the Tigers and Greenies—especially the latter, who are unbeaten in conference play.

While Tech is generally conceded the favorite, Coach Roy Mundorff is skeptical over his team's chances, saying:

"I've been there before with good teams and lost. We will have to be on our toes every minute.

The squad will remain over in New Orleans on Sunday and will leave for Atlanta that night.

The Jackets concluded pre-game practices yesterday afternoon amid the trees and shrubs of the Naval armory, being decorated for the mid-term dances this week end.

Bo Johnston, erstwhile star center, continued to run at forward yesterday and Bill Jordan performed at the pivot position.

Mundorff still would not say whether or not the shift was permanent but chances are Johnston will play forward against L. S. U. and Tulane, at least.

Jordan is just about as good a spot man as Johnston and Bo's point-scoring ability can be used to a greater advantage at forward, Coach Mundorff reasons.

The practice yesterday was undoubtedly the hardest of the year. Coach Mundorff scrimmaged his

Fulton-Marist Game Opens City Prep Cage Meet Tonight

BOYS' HIGH FIVE MEETS TYPISTS IN SECOND TILT

Tech High and Decatur Close Out Opening Night Program.

Fulton High and Marist College will open the first annual city prep basketball tournament at 7 o'clock tonight on the Fulton High court. It will be the first big city tournament in many years and will determine the prep champions for the year.

Boys' High and Commercial will follow at 9 o'clock with Tech High and Decatur closing the program at 9 o'clock.

Russell High, the seventh entry, upset Decatur High Tuesday night, leaving no unbeaten team in the tourney and a free-for-all scrap for the championship. Russell drew a bye in the opening round and will play the winner of the Boys' High-Commercial game in the Friday night feature at 9 o'clock.

Both Fulton and Marist are members of the North Georgia Inter-scholastic Conference and following this week's tourney will continue an independent schedule until the regular N. G. I. C. tournament during the third week in February.

There will be little difference in the three games tonight. Each game pairs off evenly matched foes. Decatur had the best record until upset Tuesday night.

Boys' High and Commercial have shown considerable improvement and may provide the most interesting game of the night. Both are members of the Big Eight and also are entered in the state tournament, scheduled for the Warren arena on February 24.

TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE:
7:00—Fulton High vs. Marist College.
8:00—Boys' High vs. Commercial High.
9:00—Tech High vs. Decatur High.

Payne Talks To Bulldog Gridmen

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 2.—With the new coaching regime comes New Deal in Georgia football circles.

So indicated Athletic Director W. O. Payne, in a surprise talk to the sixty odd Bulldog candidates this afternoon.

Excellent schedules for the next four or five years, new equipment and other improvements are in store for the Bulldogs under the new set-up, Professor Payne indicated.

Even the coaches and managers were barred from the huddle called by the athletic director immediately after the Red and Black squad came upon the field ready for another stiff workout in Coach Joel Hunt's strenuous spring condition campaign.

All outsiders were barred from the practice field.

Among other things Professor Payne warned the boys to keep up with their studies and urged them to co-operate wholeheartedly with the new coaching staff. He also told of plans for the alumni banquet, honoring Hunt and his staff, to be held in Atlanta next Wednesday. The entire squad will attend.

As soon as the huddle broke up, Trainer Weems Baskin led the team through a snappy series of limbering-up exercises and then turned them over to the new coaches for the real work.

Football Isn't Over for Sam

many things to see. The boy of today unwittingly is neglecting, in large part, one of the most wholesome sides of the game of life. And it is because of the well known advance of civilization.

GOT SOMETHING THERE.

Atlanta's got something there. I mean in having the finest baseball town in the minors, a nationally known and popular president in Earl Mann, who as a young committee-man represents leagues up through A-1 classification, and in having, too, the president of the Southern league. As Judge Landis has said, "We want more of your kind in baseball."

Atlanta's really got something there. And certainly no Georgian would refrain from doing a wee bit of pointing just because of that strange attitude adopted one time by Mark Antony, who confessed his sole purpose in being present was to bury Caesar and not praise him.

Major Scott is just starting—but on the right foot. And within the span of one short year, his untiring efforts will bring about some highly desired and most helpful results. He'll rank, in time to come, as one of the most progressive presidents the Southern league has ever had.

Despite "duck soup" weather, Major Scott flew from New York to Atlanta in order to catch up with the field trials. Coming out of Washington, only he and another fellow were left. It had been a bit rough. Just got to get through to Houston on some important business, the man said. "Podner," responded Trammell Scott, "your business can't be as important as mine. I'm going to the dogs down at Albenny."

HJALMAR OLSEN.

His name is Hjalmar Olsen. He is an expert handler of dogs for L. D. Bolton, whose plantation where he raises fine shooting dogs, is near here.

Olsen was perfectly satisfied with conditions here and happy to be associated with so fine a sportsman as Mr. Bolton until he read a recent column by Ralph McGill on the cheese smellers of Denmark.

Olsen was raised on one of the little islands and it's odd stuff to him. I mean the cheese smelling. Not the cheese. The column, which was a great one, has made Olsen somewhat homesick. He longs for the smell of a Danish cheese. "Yah, I know all about it," he said the other day, "but yumpin yimminy, I hate to read about it with me away over here and the cheese away over there."

Warren May Name Arena After Strib

A newly constructed all-sports arena here may be named "Stribling Memorial Hall" as a memorial to W. L. (Young) Stribling Jr., the greatest boxer Georgia ever produced.

L. C. Warren, an Atlanta businessman who financed the new arena, said he was considering that step as a fitting tribute to Stribling, who died several years ago after a motorcycle accident.

"I will approach Pa and Ma Stribling (the late fighter's parents) and also Mrs. W. L. Stribling Jr., of Macon," Warren said. "If they give their consent it is very likely we will name the arena after Young Stribling."

College Football Good As Pro, Says Baugh Here

Redskins' Pitching Ace Lauds New Collegiate Rule Encouraging More Passing.

By TOM McRAE.

Take it from Slingin' Sam Baugh, the college rules committee did a good thing in adopting the rule encouraging passing.

Passed at the last meeting of the committee, the new rule allows a team to attempt passes in the end zone until the regulation number of downs is used up, whereas formerly the ball went over when two passes in the end zone fell incomplete.

Baugh said both the players and fans like an open game and anything that encourages more scoring is an aid to the game.

AT AIRPORT.

Slingin' Sam was at the airport yesterday for a while. He arrived from Dallas and was en route to Miami, where the Washington Redskins, the pro team for which he plays, meets the Chicago Bears. Much controversy arises out of comparison between college and pro players, and in most cases the professionals are regarded much superior to their simon-pure brethren. The tall Texan pooh-poos this idea.

"Good college players are just as good pro players. I was hit just as hard when I played at Texas Christian as I am with the Redskins. The best college men throw a block as crushing as do the pros. The same is true of running and passing.

"I believe that in most cases a player reaches his peak his senior year in school."

FEWER MISTAKES.

The former T. C. U. star further backs his contention by pointing out the majority of the pros are ex-collegians. "Of course, the paid players, being older and more experienced, make fewer mistakes."

Baugh is not as large as one might suspect, though he is by no means "frail" as he himself once said about himself. He is six feet two and weighs about 185 now.

He is tall and rangy and has a build similar to that of Bobby Dodd, though he is perhaps 10 or 12 pounds heavier than the Tech backfield coach.

Asked if he intends to stay in the pro game, he said, "Yes, for a few years. I can make more money in it than doing anything else. Later I want me a coaching job, preferably one in the south."

TO ASSIST WOLF.

Baugh will assist Bear Wolf at North Carolina with spring practice. Wolf was line coach at T. C. U. when Samuel Adrian performed there. "I should get some good experience and maybe line

Rookies Agree To Cracker Terms

Art Evans, southpaw, and Lowell Hamons, a right-hander, two rookies, have returned their signed contracts to the Atlanta baseball office, it was announced Wednesday by President Earl Mann.

With Evans and Hamons in the fold, six rookies are signed up and ready for the spring drill. The others include Ted Pritchett, Onnie Robinson, Lawrie Cobb and Ross Van Antwerp.

Evans, pitching for Macon, was one of the outstanding hurlers in the Sally league last year. He won 23 for Macon in the regular season. He also is quite a hitter, and proved the most valuable player to the Macon club during the season.

Hamons was acquired from North Carolina, where he had an unusually good record last season. The Cracker batteryman have only three more weeks of leisure before reporting March 1 at the Savannah training camp.

Manager Paul Richards will be one of the first on the scene and will give the rookie pitchers the once over a week in advance of the squad which reports March 7. President Mann is pleased with the contracts already in and expects no holdout trouble.

up something for the future." He very modestly forgot to mention that possibly they would benefit by having him around.

Baugh thinks Gaynell Tinsley, the former All-American from L. S. U., is the best end in pro ball. Tinsley, he said, weighs around 200 pounds and is elusive as a halfback. When the Washington Redskins played the Chicago Cardinals, Tinsley scored three touchdowns, and each time eluded and fought off several players in scoring.

Lauter Gets Floral Basketball

As a token of appreciation for his valuable services as coach, the Jewish Progressive Club set aside all proceeds of last night's game with the Victor quintet as a "Shep Lauter Appreciation Night" fund. A large crowd witnessed the game, and Shep netted a substantial sum. In addition, feminine fans donated a floral basketball, designed by Miss Arminda Nation. Team Manager Meyer Balser is shown above presenting the "basketball" to the popular coach. Last night's 56-33 victory was the 50th since Lauter took charge.

J. P. C. CAPTURES 12TH STRAIGHT; BROWDY STARS

'Steve' Shoots 28 Points in Game Honoring Coach Shep Lauter.

By MELVIN FAZOL.

A fighting bunch of Progressive basketball players won their 12th straight game of the season last night at the J. P. C. court, turning back the hitherto unbeaten Victor quintet, a combination of Buford and Lawrenceville players, 56 to 33. The victory was the 50th for the J. P. C. team since Shep Lauter became coach three seasons ago.

The game marked "Shep Lauter Appreciation Night."

Steve Browdy, showing some of his fanciest work of the season at intervals, piled up 12 points in the first half and 16 in the second half for a grand total of 28 points. Browdy's finger had to be taped at the close of the half because of a nasty cut, but the elongated center came back scrapping to continue his attack upon the basket. He counted 13 field goals and two fouls shots, missing only one of the latter in three tries.

The visitors made a battle of it in the first half and kept the Progressives on their toes. The half ended 26-18 to the J. P. C. With Mercer Harris, Hood and Thompson firing away from all angles and distances, Victor was very much in the ball game at all times. The Progressives put on the steam late in the gam and kept safely away.

In addition to Browdy, Morris Katz, Kulbersh and Greenberg played well for the Progressives. At times the pass work of the entire team was exceptional.

MEDICOES SUNDAY.

The J. P. C. team will meet the Savannah Medicoes Sunday night, and then next Wednesday they will battle Warren in the first of a two-game series at the Warren arena.

The J. P. C. Cubs turned back Gold Shield, 37 to 28, in a preliminary game.

U. S. Naval Combine Is Denied by Leahy

Expansion Does Not Mean Union on Seas, Emphatically Says Admiral.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—Congress received assurance today from the chief of naval operations that "no plans" for joining forces with any other nation "in a possible war" were linked with the $800,000,000 naval expansion program.

Admiral William D. Leahy emphatically told the house naval committee that the projected 20 per cent increase in the size of the fleet was based solely on the need to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio of naval armaments established by the expired London and Washington treaties.

His testimony was in response to a request from Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, for comment on statements that the world believed Great Britain and the United States were allied.

"The Navy Department has no plans for combining with other nations in a possible war," Leahy said.

Representative Brewster, Republican, Maine, asked whether the proposed building program actually was necessary for defense and Leahy said the navy would have little to fear from an attacking fleet unless the latter was greatly superior. He made it plain, however, that he did not believe lack of such superiority would necessarily preclude an attack by some foreign nation.

"Why has there been insistence that Japan not match our fleet?" asked Brewster. "I do not know," Leahy replied.

"Convey to World." Brewster inquired whether the navy, in sending three cruisers to participate in the opening of the new British naval base at Singapore, intended to "convey to the world" the idea the United States was contemplating any "offensive combination."

Leahy answered that the cruisers merely would stop off at Singapore on a "courtesy visit" on their return from a trip to Sydney, Australia.

Asked as to the efficiency of the navy, Leahy said he believed American naval vessels were the equal of those of any other navy in the world. In response to further questions he indicated a belief the navy could defeat a Japanese fleet of equal size, especially if the Nipponese had to cross the Pacific for the engagement.

Will Promote Peace. Leahy denied the proposed construction of 47 new warships and 22 auxiliaries marked a radical departure from the United States' policy of working for naval armament reductions and expressed belief it would "tend definitely" to promote peace.

Representative Fish, Republican, New York, in a statement, referred to reports that the national commander of the American Legion had approved the naval program, and added:

"It would indeed be unfortunate if it were understood that the Legion had given blanket endorsement to the President's supplemental naval program which, in my opinion, is not for national defense but for aggression and to police and quarantine the world."

and that the slayings, therefore, were premeditated.

Roll showed Wright the statement he made to police which said: "They looked up and smiled and kissed again. All I could think of was to destroy that vision."

"Did you think of destroying that vision?" he was asked.

"Everything Went Blank." Wright answered that what he saw felt "no emotion—everything went blank."

"Well, was that statement about you attempting to destroy that vision true?"

"No," and Wright hesitated, "I don't know. I was trying to piece things together."

"When you saw them you thought there was something unusual there?"

"Well, I guess so; I don't know."

Ultra-Streamlines Are Not Compatible With Perfect Health

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—We had movies for ten very well-behaved children yesterday afternoon. I decided the industry has learned how to appeal to the young, for even the one-and-a-half-year-old children sat perfectly quiet for three-quarters of an hour. I learned another lesson, and that is children do not consider they have received a present unless it is wrapped up in paper and tied with ribbon.

Because the children were small, I thought it would be less confusing if I placed a small gift at each place around the supper table. One little girl held hers in her hand, turned around and demanded a present. It was not until her aunt put it into an envelope and tied it, that she was content and seemed to consider it a gift. I should have had sense enough to realize this, for I know that the outer wrappings are always half the fun of what I receive. We so often make the mistake of thinking children are different than we are, when, in reality, they react the same way we do to the pleasures and pains of life.

Chandler cut her thumb on the edge of a sheet of paper in a book which Anne Clark was reading to her. It was a most minute cut, but she was all prepared for sobs and tears. We put on some antiseptic and I told her to hold her finger carefully until it dried. I cautioned her to be sure not to let Uncle Johnny take any of the antiseptic away from her, for it was only for her. The tears changed into smiles and she felt most important and forgot she had ever thought of weeping.

This morning I took Chandler to her first day in nursery school. Though she was under perfect control, I left her looking decidedly diffident and unhappy. She returned at noon very happy because she had had a very good morning.

I have received a series of articles which are being sent but to various newspapers throughout the country in the interests of traffic improvement and safety in automobile travel. I have read them through and there is certainly some good advice from which all of us can profit. I was pleased to learn that, while men up to forty years of age are better drivers, women, once they attain a certain amount of efficiency, retain it longer than men. This is encouraging to those of us who are still driving, even though we may be on the downward path so far as age goes.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

You can tell by the way several women enter a room which is out to please or is too self-centered to think of others. One comes in smiling, the other wearing an air of "Why should I bother to put myself out?"

Economy Recipes for Cakes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Do cakes and cookies do a "disappearing act" in your house? Are there youngsters—or oldsters—who raid the cookie jar? Is "Please, may I have a piece of cake?" a frequent request? Well, be glad that your offerings are such a success and be happy when appetites are the rule in your household.

You can keep in this Polynesian frame of mind more easily if you have a collection of economical and never-failing cake and cookie recipes to guide you in restocking your pantry. Cakes and cookies are nutritious, and if you see to it that these between-meal snacks are timed so that they do not interfere with appetites for regular meals, they will do no harm and may do a lot of good.

Hard-playing children sometimes need a little extra "fuel," and what is better than a glass of milk and a cookie to provide this? Grown-ups, too, are all the better for a cup of tea and a piece of cake in the middle of the afternoon. The English and those Europeans who follow them in the afternoon tea habit really have a good idea, you know!

A Convenient Standby. It's always nice to have cake and cookies on hand for guests who drop in casually, and also to serve as dessert at any meal. There are many kinds of cake and cookies in which lard is excellent as shortening. Lard is economical, has a good flavor and is nutritious. It is especially good in spice cake, chocolate cake and in a wide variety of cookies. Many homemakers have noticed that cakes and cookies made with lard keep fresh longer. Maybe yours don't last long enough for that to be important!

Here are recipes to add to your collection:

Maraschino Cherry Cake.
4 1/2 cups cake flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup lard
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/4 cups milk
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
2 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1 1/4 cup maraschino cherries
Sift flour once, measure and sift with baking powder and salt. Cream lard. Continue creaming, gradually adding 1 1/2 cups sugar and 3 tablespoons of milk. Add egg yolks and flavorings to milk. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Add remaining sugar and beat until sugar is dissolved. Fold into creamed mixture. Pour batter into greased loaf pan or three greased nine-inch layer pans. Sprinkle 1/4 cup finely cut pieces of maraschino cherries over the batter. If loaf pan is used, bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 to 50 minutes. If layer pans are used, bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes.

Sour Milk Spice Cake.
2 1/2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 teaspoon allspice
1 1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cup lard
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup sour milk
1 cup raisins or currants
Sift flour, baking powder, soda and spices together. Unless lard is soft, cream the sugar, salt and lard, using about 100 strokes. Add beaten egg to the mixture. Add the flour and milk to the creamed mixture alternately. Use about 200 strokes for adding flour and milk, or if all flour and milk are added at once, use about 150 strokes. If the room and ingredients are rather warm, shorten the mixing period. Pour into pan lined with wax paper. Bake at 350

AFTERNOON FROCK WITH GIRDLE WAISTLINE.

This very feminine frock is one which young things will enjoy. The softly shirred bodice gives smart emphasis to the top of the frock, a detail that is especially good for bridge parties and dinner when what one sees over the teacups is one's whole claim to chic. The skirt with twin panels at front flares forward to make the waistline look inches smaller. A smooth midriff adds to the young look of this very soft frock, wearable now under winter coats.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

TRUE VERSION OF HOLLYWOOD REDUCING SHOWS SICKNESS SOMETIMES FOLLOWS SLIMMING

Dorothy Howe, Paramount's rising star from the Lone Star state, knows the value of streamlines. You can have a beautiful figure if you exercise as consistently as this ambitious young actress.

Screen stars pay a high price for streamlines, according to a prominent columnist and radio commentator on the Hollywood scene. The stars appear so radiantly beautiful on the screen that we are apt to get the impression that any program they favor for health and beauty must be all right.

I have always suspected this to be untrue since ultra streamlines are not compatible with perfect health. The interview with the columnist proves these suspicions are well founded.

"Many of the stars have to diet, because the figure looks ten pounds heavier on the screen," she explains. "This strenuous dieting lowers their resistance." And here is the inside story of what happens when a Hollywood actress decides to keep her weight down at any cost.

The prolonged satiation and meatless diet followed by the glamorous Garbo has resulted in and all through the spring without a coat. You can make it up for your own wardrobe in a few hours. The design lends itself to a soft silk crepe or one of the new rayon prints.

SPECIAL PROBLEMS.

Which shall it be? Shall Mrs. Heavy resign herself to being stout—and getting stout?

Or shall she rebel against those unlabeled pounds—and go on a low-calorie diet which will bring her figure back again?

Of course Mrs. Heavy resolves it shall be the diet and the slim figure—starting now!

She's learned she can lose two pounds a week by cutting calories to 1,200 a day. If she cuts wisely she can have her regular three meals and enjoy her food more than ever.

For doesn't it spoil that mid-shopping snack of a doughnut and cup of hot chocolate to know that their 560 calories are piling up another chin?

A square of gingerbread you can relish with a clear conscience, for it has only 100 calories. Hot tea and lemon have none at all. You say "no" to griddle cakes and sausages without a second thought. Each well-buttered grid-die cake is 150 calories, each little pork sausage 50. How good your lightly buttered toast is—only 75 calories—and your crisp slice of bacon—25 calories.

Desserts? Yes—if you know your desserts. That homey little dish, Brown Betty, is 500 calories a cup. Switch to coffee jelly, 80 calories a cup.

No point, is there, in putting off reducing? Have this typical low-calorie dinner today: 2 hamburger patties, 1 baked white potato, 1 small pat of butter, asparagus salad, mineral oil dressing, Spanish cream. Only 475 calories.

Our 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake," gives you two weeks' low-calorie menus; calory chart; exercises. Based on famous protective diet.

anemia, and her friends are very much concerned over her health.

Luisa Rainer, as you know, has been very sick. Miss Parsons believes this illness to be partly due to injudicious dieting, and says: "Miss Rainer told me one time that she ate only eggs and tomatoes. She had to get very fat when she played the role of Anna Held in the 'Great Ziegfeld,' and when she made 'The Good Earth' she had to be many pounds lighter. So she went on a terribly strict diet and ate practically nothing. Since that time she has hardly had a well day."

Joan Crawford, who looks so willowy on the screen, normally has broad shoulders and a structure which entitles her to more weight. Because fashion demands that the screen favorites be as thin as rails, she has always dieted rigorously. She is a prey to bad colds and sore throats and lately has been forced to eat nourishing food.

Ruth Chatterton was an addict of the saltiest vegetable diet and since that time she has not been really well.

Gloria Swanson, on the other hand, has kept her health and figure surprisingly well. She follows a well-balanced diet and likes vegetables cooked in parchment bags in which their natural juices are retained and their mineral value kept intact.

Some of the stars, this writer points out, have improved their health through a wise diet and exercise program. Clark Gable, who goes on a four-day diet of steaks, chops and tomatoes and exercises along with dieting, has never looked so well in his life. Many of the players keep fit with tennis and other outdoor sports.

Prior to her own recent film debut in "Hollywood Hotel," this columnist slimmed down. She tells me she took off 25 pounds by a sensible program of balanced diet and exercise. She ate very sparingly at dinner, taking her main meal in the middle of the day, and exercised morning and night on an electric bicycle. Mary Boland took off weight in the same manner.

The newest fad going the rounds of the stars is the one in which only uncooked vegetables are eaten. This diet is foolish and dangerous. Some of the stars never touch meat, eggs and milk—no wonder they lose their health!

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

—News From the Studios—

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—Bette Davis is one of Hollywood's real workers. She can be relied upon to emote for the camera until she drops—a state she has now reached after arduous toil in "Jezebel," with Henry Fonda. Her doctor has finally convinced her that at the moment, six weeks in the desert are more important than making another picture. But that is all the time Bette intends to remain away from her film labors. Immediately after her return she will be starred in "Comet Over Broadway." Miss Davis plays a glamorous New York actress whose husband is sent to jail—giving her lots of opportunities to reveal sacrifice and loyalty.

Merle Oberon has decided that her career comes before love-interest Michael Crichton, and plans to leave the Britisher and England within three weeks for Hollywood and the leading feminine role in "The Cowboy and the Lady," in which Gary Cooper, Jon Hall and Sigrid Gurie also will appear. Incidentally, John Emerson, signed with Anita Loos for the screen play, is suffering a nervous breakdown. Miss Loos has taken over the entire job, working night and day to have the story ready for the March 15 production date.

Paramount now is lining up pictures for Frances Dee that should take her well past middle age. The latest is "Cafe Society," in which John Barrymore has been tentatively announced for the part of society reporter. Imminent pictures for which Miss Dee's name has been cast include "Marching Herds" and "Racing Form," with George Raft. Co-emoters in "Cafe Society" for which Ernst Lubitsch has written some dialogue—include Ray Milland and Harriet Hilliard.

Annual football picture for RKO-Radio is titled "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," with Joe Penner playing the student son of a wealthy alumnus who offers the college $1,000,000 if his boy becomes a football hero. Which, of course, he does, in the final reel.

Further notes from the RKO front: Richard Dix joins Cary Grant, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Joan Bennett in "Gunga Din."

Latest recruits for Shirley Temple's forthcoming "Little Miss Broadway" musical are blonde Phyllis Brooks and midgets George and Ollie Branso. The latter are about the same height as Shirley. Jimmy Durante, Donald Meek and Edward Ellis have prominent roles.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: My older sister was married when she was 19 to the only man she had known. They have had it pretty hard because they've been poor and had a baby. Mother won't let my brother-in-law come to our home nor have anything to do with him. You see sister had a great talent for art and could have made mother very happy by using it. Instead she got married, so mother won't forgive her. Well, it all falls back on me. She's afraid I will do the same way and she is wild when I have a date. The more she tries to keep me separated from my boy friend the more I like him. Now I want to obey her and I don't want to make her unhappy but I have no idea of giving up my friend. He wants me to stay at home and date him on the sly and I want to leave home where I can live to suit myself. Which would be better?

CECILE.

Answer: Cecile, you and I both believe in a child's duty to honor and obey her parents and I rather think the duty to obey lasts as long as the parents are footing her bills. So before you kick out of the traces, remember that somebody has got to buy your bread and meat, shoes and stockings, hats and dresses, and you shouldn't leave home without having these things in the bag, so to speak.

Now when it comes to honoring one's parents, the parents have a part in that program and if the parents don't come through the children can't. A mother who is unforgiving and vindictive to the point that she refuses to let her son-in-law come into her home and cuts her older daughter off because the girl didn't marry according to her wishes, that woman is behaving in such a way that her children can't honor her.

Then get down to a good talk with your mother and in a respectful way tell her that her bitterness toward your older sister is playing havoc with your happiness. You see we can't have faith in anything or anybody while we are harboring hate in our heart. Your mother can't have faith in you because she is stewing with resentment against your sister and her husband. It would be bad enough if she were the only one who suffered but as it always the case everybody in the family must pay the price for her unforgiving, unlovely attitude toward her child.

Most likely you will be able to convince her that you will be true to your word; that you won't run away and get married on the spur of the moment. Once her mind is set at rest on this point, she will likely let you have your dates in the living room at home. If she won't, then you can begin to make your plans to support yourself and when you are independent you can talk about living to suit yourself.

Why can't a fond parent learn that the only way she can control her adolescent children is with the classic cord of love? Why can't she learn that her harsh voice of authority will hardly be heard by young ears that are roaring with the music of the new love-song—nor heed if heard?

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE SCIENCE OF MEDICINE—THE ART OF APPLYING IT.

It is not so much what the doctor knows as what he does that counts, when you really need a doctor.

Two of the best lessons I ever learned came soon after I graduated from medical school and entered upon my duties as a hospital intern. Among these duties was the daily dressing of various surgical cases. The nurses were kind and showed me again and again how each different case should be dressed. You may imagine what gall and wormwood it was to me. Then presently came my first outside call—some poor family sent to the hospital for a doctor, and it was my turn. I found a child with acute bronchitis. In the hospital I would have written down an order and the nurses would have carried the order out. Here we had no nurse. So I was constrained to show the child's mother just how to prepare and apply a hot mustard foot bath and a mustard paste to the chest. For the latter I boiled the mustard. Imagine my chagrin when I returned to the hospital and described my treatment. Boiling the mustard is like painting the lily. The nurses heard my report of the case politely enough, only a few of them snickered right out. Still, I was a pretty smart young doctor; I had learned a lot about what a doctor ought to do, but I had yet to learn how he should do it.

That is the chief trouble with the medical course today. What a young doctor doesn't know about the science of medicine when they turn him loose from medical college is scarcely worth mentioning in footnotes. But when it comes to the art of applying this vast knowledge in actual practice he is pathetically unprepared.

Considering the relative importance of medical science and medicine, the one or two years' hospital internship which the young doctor generally puts in as a sort of apprenticeship before he enters private practice is ridiculously inadequate, or else the four years of medical school study is absurdly long.

The other day a correspondent wrote to thank me for having referred him to a doctor who extirpated his tonsils with diathermy. I had already been impressed by the large number of readers who had taken the trouble to write to tell me how pleased they were with the doctor's treatment. The correspondent remarked that perhaps the doctor's skill was in part due to his training as an artist, and he mentioned some of the doctor's achievements in his avocation. I believe it is quite so.

My criticism of the present tendency in nurse training is that the doctors who have charge of nurse training pools attempt to fill the nurse's head with a lot of trifling tin hooey, actual medical stuff, which just tires her, wastes her study time, and prevents her from learning how to nurse the sick patient, how to do things to make the patient comfortable. We know from the very best experience that the intelligent young women make excellent nurses in a properly directed two-year course of training. The third year is robbery of the nurse's professional service, nothing else.

I believe medical education at present is similarly afflicted. We're turning out top-heavy young doctors, and they're not much use for the plain family doctoring business.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Eye Exercise.
Where may I obtain a set of exercises for the eyes? Also information that would help me avoid wearing or to discard glasses? (F. J.)

Answer—Best exercise for the eyes is using them to view scenes or scenery at varying distances. Best conservation for vision, if there is myopia, near sightedness or other refractive error, is wearing glasses carefully fitted by eye physician while the unconscious accommodation or strain is at rest under the effect of eye drops.

Safe Milk.
Four children? Prices of milk recently went up. We have found a place where we can get raw milk considerably less than the market price here. Can you tell us how to make it safe for our children? (Mrs. E. G.)

Answer—Boil it for one minute only. This will make it safe for anybody. In my opinion milk so sterilized is preferable to pasteurized milk. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

THE PIPER'S TUNE

By JOSEPH McCORD.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Caradad Vardell, still in digital when Terry Cantine, now a bond salesman, left the cow country, sells Farrabow with the rambling ranch house less than a year after her father's death. Dad, as everybody calls her, needs a change and starts for Chicago. En route she chances wiring Terry at the last address she has. Terry, tall and handsome, hardly knows the little, freckled, bespectacled, attractive girl who alights from a Pullman. A breakfast in the railroad station, he learns of John Vardell's death and the sale of Farrabow through Judge Pomphrey, his old friend. She declines a cigarette and Terry begins to worry over entertaining the visitor. He suggests the Y. W. and is surprised when she goes to the swanky Bunbury. They chat over dinner, then Terry goes to the Gold Coast pent house of Nick Tankerley, who drinks a lot, collects first editions and reads westerns. A guest there is Greta Greenway, a widow, who next day phones dad. Her conversation makes dad wonder what her interest in Terry is. Nick gives a party for dad, introducing her as Annie Oakley. Wandering into Nick's library, she meets wealthy John Severance, who is browsing on a business trip. Severance takes dad to the Art Institute, proves a capable guide and critic, and takes her to a drive. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

AT LAST!

INSTALLMENT XIX.

Terry Cantine's smile vanished at Caradad Vardell's calm statement that she proposed to help him out of his difficulties. His brows drew down in an impatient frown. Instead of replying directly, he shot the curt question, "What's Gerta been saying?"

"Gerta?" Caradad stared innocently. "Why, you told me yourself, Terry!"

"I? I never did."

"We were sitting right here," she insisted. "You told me you were up against a hard game, one that took time and money. You even said you sometimes wished that you had kept your old job—or stayed with your father. You were badly worried then. What ever it is, it's worse. I know it the minute I saw you tonight. You have been telling me so ever since—it's in your face. Well?"

"I never could put much over on you," Terry admitted. "Yes—I'm in a sort of jam at the moment. But everything's all right."

"How much will it take?" was her persistent rejoinder.

"What?" Terry sat bolt upright. "Listen! Dad! I may be a lot of things, but nobody has ever accused me of being a heel! What do you take me for?"

"A friend," Caradad said simply. "And I'm another."

"And how?" Terry sank back. He had growled the words, but there was an odd huskiness in his voice. "That's swell of you, Dad."

"I don't believe I'd be jealous. If Pa prefers some other woman, he can have her; but I'm not going to set still and let some scheming hussy make a fool of him." (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

AUNT HET

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

"I am," he returned dryly. "And I'm going straight home. Gerta wanted me to drop back, but I don't feel like going into things tonight. She's a swell girl, tops. But she worries a lot about things. She can't help it. I reckon. You women are all that way."

Instead of making any rejoinder to that, Caradad puckered her small brows before she said: "Let's look at it another way, Terry. I have some money in the bank that I intend to invest. You handle securities, gilt-edge, you told me. I'd like to buy some, and you'd be entitled to your commission. That might help a little—if you absolutely refuse a loan."

"You're more adroit than I gave you credit for," Terry smiled as he rose to his feet.

"Nothing of the sort," Caradad answered impatiently. "That's a business pure and simple. I have the money and I intend to invest it. I can get in touch with Judge Pomphrey by wire and."

"And old Pompey will scream so you can hear him here—when he knows you're dealing with me," Terry supplied with a grin. "Let's keep things as they are, Dad. It will turn out better in the end. And, now, good night, old dear."

"Good night, Terry. And I still think you're perfectly silly."

"I'm sure of it. Give you a buzz sometime tomorrow."

Terry had fully intended to proceed directly home. But when he reached the lobby, he thought he had better call Gerta and explain he would see her in the morning. If he didn't, she would call him—she probably had already. Rather to his surprise, her voice gave no intimation of displeasure.

"I was afraid you wouldn't be able to leave right away, dear," she told him. "But I'm still waiting. Please come as soon as you can."

"Let's make it tomorrow, Gerta. I'll drop around early—for breakfast, if you like."

"Don't you realize that I have not seen you for more than a week? Surely it won't

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—It looks as if the technical rally has been completed and the 110-120 level of the industrial averages seems probable before long.

BEER & CO.—Failure to complete a normal technical recovery does not speak well for internal conditions. It may be that resistance to selling must make its appearance from the opening of another session.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.—Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling f. o. b. 9.15.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 2.—(P)
The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 8.54 cents a pound. The average for the past 30 market days was 8.52 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(P)
Cotton held steady today. May fluctuated between 8.50 and 8.54, closing at 8.51, with final prices 1 to 3 points net higher.

The market opened 3 to 5 points higher on a little trade and foreign buying. Contracts were scarce throughout the greater part of the day except for a little scattered selling during the middle of the afternoon. Commission house liquidation of the near month was taken by the trade and spot houses. The spot cotton and textiles were dull.

DEER & CO.—Reported rather un-weather and crop-governed but satisfactory. Export demand continues to be weak. The market of prices unless we see a further improvement in the weather is marked improvement. We remain in connection.

THOMSON & McKINNON—We remain of the opinion that export demand will show easiness until export demand improves.

FENNER & BEANE—A two-sided market is likely, but on the down swing we favor the buying side.

E. & J. PIERCE & CO.—We believe the southeast growing conditions will exert more important influence on prices at this early date than in most years.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

No. 10

When the warrior saw Tarzan and shouted the alarm, the other spearmen looked up in amazement at the strange figure just above their heads. The spearmen were trapped! If he made a move to leap back into the trees, a score of spears would be plunged into his body.

No! His only chance was bold, resolute action. Since there was equal danger in retreating or advancing, he chose to advance. The blacks expected him to try to escape; they gripped their spears firmly. But instead of fleeing, he dropped down to the platform.

The warriors stood immovable with amazement. They felt that this creature would not deliberately attack a shoulder. The which-door was the first of the savages to recover his wits when he saw that the captive was about to be stolen. Stop him! Kagundo cried; "kill him! Spears! Spears!"

Tarzan held hold of the white man and flung him across a shoulder. The which-door was the first of the savages to recover his wits when he saw that the captive was about to be stolen. Stop him! Kagundo cried; "kill him! Spears! Spears!"

Economic Unrest Blamed for Mexican Riots

Record of Cardenas Agrarian Reform Not Successful in Terms of Crops.

Editor's Note: Recent occurrences in northern Mexico, where Fascist Gold Shirts clashed with federal troops, have focused attention on President Lazaro Cardenas' socialization program. In the following dispatch William H. Lander, United Press bureau manager in Mexico City, explains the President's plan and its social and economic effect on the country.

By WILLIAM H. LANDER.
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)
MEXICO, D. F., Feb. 2.—This week's disturbances in Tamaulipas state, where rebels identified as Fascist Gold Shirts crossed into Mexico from the United States and clashed with federal forces, dovetail with reports here of unrest in the north because of the economic situation.

Information reaching the capital indicates that well-intentioned plans of President Lazaro Cardenas to improve rapidly the lot of Mexican peasants and laborers have run into difficulties. An agricultural crisis in 1937 resulted in a shortage of food, skyrocketing prices of essential commodities to startling levels. All wage increases which laborers have obtained in the past three years as result of strikes, negotiations, etc., have been wiped out in terms of real money because of the rise in living costs.

While the Mexican uprising at Matamoros and Ramirez in the state of Tamaulipas across the border from Texas is said to have been quelled, it still smolders as long as General Nicholas Rodriguez is at the head of the band of "Gold Shirts." Rodriguez, shown at left, is with his second in command, Lamberto C. Chavez, in their "Gold Shirt" regalia.

Wheat Imported.

Sixty thousand tons of wheat were imported from the United States and Argentina in the past three months alone. And that is not all: Corn and cocoa—products that originated in Mexico—today are not being produced in sufficient quantities to meet the national demand.

Another big disappointment has been the showing made in the first year that the Laguna cotton district in the northern states of Coahuila and Durango has been operated under the system of agrarian communities. When private owners—chiefly Americans, British, Spaniards and Mexicans—operated that region, its irrigation works functioned smoothly and fine cotton crops were produced. This land was seized in November, 1935, and President Cardenas personally visited the district to direct distribution of expropriated tracts to the peasants. Statistics regarding the 1937 crop have been carefully withheld from the public, but for months the peasants have been clamoring for the President to return to the district to "straighten up" their affairs. The President had planned to go there last November, and then postponed his projected visit until January, but other more pressing matters have further delayed the trip.

10,000 Face Loss of Jobs.
Vicente Lombardo Toledano, chairman of the Mexican Workers Confederation, recently asserted the situation in the Laguna region was so bad that 10,000 laborers there are in danger of losing their jobs, with a consequent threat to their families of hunger and privation.

The official explanation of the agricultural situation is that it was too dry in some places, and too much rain in others.

Luis Cabrera, distinguished attorney and author of the first agrarian reform law (adopted in 1915) charged that the main trouble "is that the poor peasants are being fooled." They have been told they will get land, Cabrera said, but what happened was that they ceased working for the owner of the property and became instead virtual slaves of the Agricultural Credit Bank.

The record of the Cardenas agrarian reform, in terms of acres distributed, is imposing. But in terms of crops actually produced, so far it has not been successful.

WAFDISTS DEMAND NEUTRAL CABINET

King Farouk Asked To Name Unbiased Supervisors for Parliamentary Elections.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 2.—(P)—Mustapha Nahan Pasha, leader of the Wafdist opposition party, demanded today that young King Farouk appoint a neutral cabinet to supervise elections to be held within two months.

The grizzled ex-premier presented a petition to this effect at Abdin palace after King Farouk dissolved the parliament which voted nonconfidence January 4 in his hand-picked cabinet, named a month ago.

The petition was signed by Wafdist (nationalist) party deputies who occupied the chamber for a time in protest against dissolution.

It was learned the new elections would be on a basis of the higher 1937 census and would return about 265 deputies, instead of 232 in the dissolved parliament.

The Wafdists, nevertheless, were confident they would win out.

NAVY PROMOTION BILL INTRODUCED BY VINSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval affairs committee, today introduced a bill to establish a new system of selecting men for promotion in the navy.

Vinson said under his plan selections would be strictly on a merit basis. They would be determined by selection boards which would be required to report to the secretary of the navy their reasons for selection.

He urged friends and supporters to "refrain from dealing in personalities," and said "none who casts a ballot for him will ever have cause to regret or to apologize for so doing."

HOOVER OFF TO VISIT BELGIAN UNIVERSITIES

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 2.—(P)—Former President Herbert Hoover left today for New York en route to Belgium as the guest of that country's universities.

He will tour the area over which he presided as food administrator after the World War.

FERTILIZER FROM RUBBISH.

A plant which will produce from ordinary household refuse a valuable land fertilizer is to be established by the Royal Borough of Kensington, England. It is estimated that more than $16,000,000 is thrown away annually in the form of rubbish.

COTTON GROWERS TO GET EARLY FUNDS

Committee Agrees on Part Payment to Farmers in Granary Program.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(P)—Members of a joint congressional committee reported agreement today in a provision for early partial payments to cotton growers co-operating in the ever-normal granary program and said their work was virtually complete.

Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, said the senate-house group would go over a printed draft of the new farm program Friday and it then would be ready for consideration in the house.

Smith and Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, said the provision added today would speed payment of part of the $130,000,000 voted by congress for cotton growers complying with the new program.

Under this, Smith said, cotton farmers could surrender title to some 5,000,000 bales of cotton in warehouses as security for government loans of $45 a bale, and receive a bonus of $10 a bale with the right of getting more later if funds permitted.

Smith, sponsor of this provision, said the government loan agencies then would have to hold this cotton until prices rose enough to pay all costs of the loan.

"This should take the terrible cotton surplus off the market," Smith said, "without costing the government an additional dime of money."

CONFERES AGREE ON COTTON ALLOTMENT

T. W. Duggan, acting director of the southern region of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said here yesterday senate and house conferees on farm legislation "apparently have agreed on a cotton acreage allotment under the pending bill."

"Under it," he said in a statement, "a farmer would be assigned a certain acreage. If he did not exceed that acreage, he could grow all the cotton he produced without payment of any tax whatever."

"For example, if a farmer received an allotment of 90 acres and grew a bale to the acre, he could sell every pound produced without the payment of any tax. If he planted 100 acres, he would pay tax on the cotton produced on the 10 acres in excess of his acreage allotment."

Duggan is in Atlanta attending the convention of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers.

HUGE AVALANCHE

Slide Hits Monastery of St. Bernard.

GENEVA, Feb. 2.—(P)—An avalanche a quarter of a mile wide swept down on the Alpine monastery of St. Bernard Sunday shattering doors and windows but leaving the monks and famous dogs unharmed.

Re-establishment of telephone connections today with the hospice brought word of the landslide.

Witnesses described the wall of snow, ice and rocks as the worst avalanche in the district in a decade.
